Ship Hits Mine—42 Rescued

Hope Fades For Rest Of 93 On LaPlace Off St. Malo Coast

ST. MALO, FRANCE, Sept. 16—(AP)—Resuce ships searched stormy waters off St. Malo tonight for additional survivors of the weather ship La Place, which sank shortly after midnight after striking a drifting World War II mine.

Only 42 have been saved so far of the 93 persons known to have been aboard, a navy ministry communique said. Twenty-one bodies have been recovered.

Hope for the lives of the rest faded as night fell on a coast churned by near hurricane winds.

Return From Tour

The La Place, the former 1,400 ton U. S. frigate Roanoke, built six years ago, was anchored just outside of St. Malo, after returning from 21-day tour of duty off the Spanish coast, when the disaster struck.

It was believed by official naval sources that a magnetic mine, sown during the war, had been ripped loose from the bottom of the sea by the storm and washed against the La Place, tearing its steel hull as under when it exploded. Most of those aboard were asleep at the time.

The navy ministry said the ship arrived late yesterday and was scheduled to go into St. Malo harbor. The skipper, a captain Remusart, apparently decided against entering the harbor in the darkness and ordered the vessel anchored outside in the bay.

Scores of vessels rushed to the rescue when the explosion occurred and picked up survivors.

Denham Fired As Counsel

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP)—President Truman fired Robert N. Denham today as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, abruptly ending a long, harsh feud between Denham and the five board members.

Mr. Truman asked for Denham's resignation and accepted it on the ground that the differences were so "deep-seated" that Denham and the board were unlikely to restore harmonious relations in their administration of the Taft-Hartley act.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), co-author of that law, quickly called Mr. Truman's action "another surrender to the CIO Political Action Committee."

Taft issued a statement in Ohio where he is campaigning for re-election. He said the President "last week attended a secret meeting of the labor bosses, and no doubt this is the payoff."

Denham, an aggressive, 64-year-old St. Louis born Republican with an unusual career as lawyer, banker, machinist, cowhand, and army officer, has been under fire from union leaders ever since he was appointed by Mr. Truman three years ago.

Taft said the President is, in effect, attempting to "nullify" the Taft-Hartley law passed in 1947.

It was this law which created the office of general counsel with independent powers to prosecute unions and employers for unfair labor practices.

Rains Flood Streets At Paris, Texas

PARIS, Tex., Sept. 16—(AP)—Heavy rains flooded streets and caused some property damage as they lashed parts of East Texas today.

At Jefferson, rowboats plied downtown streets flooded by seven inches of rain. Paris, near the Red river, had two inches of rain. Many streets were flooded and some telephones were drowned out.

The Weather

Partly cloudy north, mostly cloudy south portion Sunday with a few scattered showers likely extreme south portion; Monday partly cloudy except mostly cloudy extreme south; little change in temperature; high Sunday 70-75.

• Thought for Today

And they cried out again, Crucify him.—Mark 15:13.

The cross is the center of the world's history; the incarnation of Christ and the crucifixion of our Lord are the pivot round which all the events of the ages revolve. The testimony of Christ was the spirit of prophecy, and the growing power of Jesus is the spirit of history.

Was Crushed To Death By Tractor

CRAIG, Mo., Sept. 16—(AP)—Clifford Heits, 42, was found crushed to death today under his overturned tractor about 300-yards from his farm home.

Howard Calkins, county coroner, said the man had been dead since Friday morning.

The body was found by a sister, Mrs. Clarence Robbins, and Louis Foster, a neighbor, who said they had not seen him or heard from him since last Thursday.

Heits, who lived alone on the farm, was widely known in this area as a semi-pro baseball pitcher. He was a World War II veteran.

Conferees For 17 Billion Defense Bill

To Build Up U. S. Military And Help Arm Her Allies

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP)—Senate-house conferees agreed today on an emergency defense bill carrying an estimated $17,000,000,000 to build up America's military machine and help arm her allies.

The conferees, however, left it up to the house to decide separately on a senate provision which shut off U. S. economic aid to any nation that sells arms or military useful goods to Russia or her satellites.

The house members of the conference committee insisted on taking that feature of the senate bill back to the house for a direct vote, probably next Wednesday.

The conferees ironed out differences between a $17,192,000,000 senate bill and a $16,771,000,000 house measure.

The committee agreed to cut the senate total by about $120,000,000, but none of the reductions touched the strictly defense features of the legislation.

Thus the compromise measure still carries $11,736,000,000 to expand this country's military program and $4,000,000,000 to help arm friendly nations against Communist aggression.

How Be Divided

The bill in final form includes $3,166,403,000 for the army as compared with $3,148,949,000 in the house measure: $3,734,291,000 for the navy as compared with $3,684,007,000: and $4,560,400,000 for the air force as compared with $4,535,400,000.

Both measures provide for 5,333 new war planes.

The biggest single reduction the conferees made in the measure was a 50 percent slash in a $60,000,000 senate provision for administering the new economic controls law. The decision reportedly was based on the idea that amount will be adequate for handling of the program until the next session of congress starting in January.

The conferees agreed on $79,000,000 for a voice of America "campaign of truth" to counteract Russia's Communist propaganda. The senate had voted $97,000,000, while the house approved $77,000,000.

Cut in half was a senate grant of $24,500,000, in federal aid for school construction. The house bill did not include any money for that.

Heads Division Of Women

Mrs. Ike L. Warren, of the McMullin-Whitaker company, has been appointed chairman of the Women's Division of the advance drive of the 1950 Community Chest, it was announced by Arthur Morgan, General Chairman of the drive.

Mrs. Ike L. Warren

Mrs. Warren is an active member of the Chamber of Commerce Board. When she accepted this position she expressed optimism in the success of the 1950 Drive and was of the opinion that because "A day's pay" can be paid on the pledge system over a period of one year, the Drive would be a success.

She stated that she plans to get her division organized within the near future.

Start Monday Tightening Up On Controls

Runaway Credit Be Hobbled And Hoarding Hit

By Sterling F. Green

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP)—The government made ready today for Monday's opening assault on inflation—twin controls applied to easy payment buying by consumers and to speculative hoarding by industry.

Starting Monday, the Federal Reserve Board's new "regulation W" will hobble runaway consumer credit. Bigger down payments and shorter time limits for payment will affect autos and major household appliances.

At the same time, the week-old National Production Authority (NPA) will invoke its first order designed to outlaw excessive buying of materials which are in short supply.

This NPA action will not affect consumers, who President Truman says are now generally buying with good sense and restraint.

It will, however, forbid factories and dealers to purchase more than normal stocks of scarcity items like steel, copper, rubber and lumber in anticipation of higher prices or dwindling supplies.

Such "inventory hoarding" bids prices up needlessly, government officials say. Also, some of the hoarded items might leak into "gray markets."

The inventory order has not yet been issued. Its terms will be announced tomorrow night. They are enforceable, under the Defense Production Act of 1950, by $10,000 fine or one year's imprisonment, or both.

Mr. Truman's chief weapon put to use against soaring prices, however, will be the consumer credit regulation. Its limitations, which can be tightened up if installment credit keeps soaring to new records monthly, were announced Sept. 8.

What Be Required

They provide:

Down payments of at least one-third on autos, and completion of payments within 21 months.

Down payments of at least 15 per cent, and an 18 month payment limit, on refrigerators, freezers, radio and television sets, phonographs, cook stoves, ranges, dish washers, ironers, washing machines, clothes driers, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, air conditioners and dehumidifiers.

Down payment of at least 10 per cent, and a 30-month payoff limit, on credit for home repairs, improvements and alterations.

The cash down payment rules do not apply to items costing less than $100, but the pay-off limits will apply. Autos costing more than $5,000, and other items costing more than $2,500, are exempted fully.

Consumer credit, which was at a boom-time level before the Communist attack on Korea, has shot beyond $20,000,000,000 since then.

Each credit sale is equivalent to that much expansion of the ready-money supply. The new regulation is not designed to deflate credit, but to curb its expansion.

The Federal Reserve expects the new rules to put a crimp in the demand for cars and electrical appliances, although the terms are much less strict than those applied in World War II.

They are, in fact, not much tighter than the payment schedules fixed by most dealers in recent months. New car dealers, who generally have required one-third down and two years to pay, expect little falling-off in sales.

Hit Used Car Market

The used car market may suffer more, industry officials believe, because the low income family—the one most likely to buy a second-hand car—is probably the one removed from the market by Monday's controls.

Some home appliance dealers who specialize in the "nothing down, two years to pay" type of selling expect to lose possibly half their business when the new rules take hold, but these cases are exceptions rather than the rule.

Credit has been free and easy since the middle of last year, when the postwar version of "regulation W" expired. The Federal Reserve has asked at various times that it be given permanent power to clamp them back on when inflationary threats arise, but the new emergency legislation expires, as far as credit it concerned, next June 30.

None of the sweeping price, wage and rationing control powers vested in Mr. Truman are tabbed for use—yet. Mr. Truman has not even named a head for the new "Economic Stabilization Agency" which he created on paper a week ago.

Ilgenfritz Home Is Sold

Fine Residence On Broadway To Clinton Muellers

The family home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ilgenfritz, 615 West Broadway has been sold for $30,000 to Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Mueller, who now reside southwest of Sedalia with Mrs. Mueller's mother, Mrs. Quincy A. Morgan on the Morgan farm.

According to Mrs. Ilgenfritz the home was built in 1915 at cost of about $60,000 by Edward H. Harris, then cashier of the Third National Bank. The structure is built entirely of stone, concrete and brick. Many of the doors and most of the woodwork, of cherry and walnut was hand milled here in Sedalia.

C. E. Ilgenfritz bought the home in 1927. Mrs. Ilgenfritz died in 1935 and he continued to live there until his death in 1943. Following his uncle's death Wm. Ilgenfritz purchased the home and remodeled it. After C. E. Ilgenfritz died many of the antiques that filled the home were sold. Mrs. Wm. Ilgenfritz estimated that possibly six to ten thousand dollars worth of the antiques went to purchasers from here and elsewhere.

Has Twelve Rooms

The home now consists of twelve rooms; two full and two half baths and was the scene of many social activities and New Year's parties when occupied by the Harris family.

The home is located on the southeast corner of Broadway at Harrison avenue and is situated on the west lot. East of the home lies another lot of equal dimensions, 77 x 255.

Mrs. Ilgenfritz said the papers were signed Saturday afternoon. She added that her plans for the future are indefinite.

Wm. Ilgenfritz judge of the magistrate court of Pettis county, has been at the Bohtwell hospital for the past six months. He suffered a severe stroke in March and has been bedfast in Sedalia with the exception of a week when he was under the care of specialists in Kansas City.

Jim Tom Rank, young nephew of the Ilgenfritz's, has been living with the family since infancy.

R. J. Maxwell Rotary Speaker

Roy J. Maxwell, Director of Publicity and Advertising on the Missouri Pacific Lines, St. Louis, will be the guest speaker at Rotary Monday noon at Bothwell hotel.

Mr. Maxwell's entire business career has been in the traffic and public relations departments of the Missouri Pacific where he rose through various grades to assistant advertising manager in 1930 and on April 1 of the following year he was advanced to advertising manager. He was promoted to the position of director-Publicity-Advertising on April 1, 1947.

Active in advertisng circles in St. Louis, Mr. Maxwell served as president of the Advertising Club of St. Louis from 1939 to 1941 and now is a member of the organization's Gridiron committee. He was vice president and member of the board of the Advertising Federation of America from 1940 to 1942 and formerly was on the board of the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis. During 1930 and 1931 he was president of the American Association of Railway Advertising Agents.

Truman Gift Brings 25 Cents In Grab Bag

RUSHVILLE, Mo., Sept. 16—(AP)—A drawing of the White House, sent to the Loyal Daughters Class of the Rushville Christian church by Mrs. Harry Truman, brought 25 cents at a grab bag party.

On a dare, Mrs. Clarence Little wrote Mrs. Truman requesting a gift for the grab bag. The President's wife sent the picture.

Nadine Wells, a Republican, drew the gift from the bag. County Collector Clifton Hurst asked her if she'd sell it. She did for the customary grab bag price of 25 cents.

Hurst is a candidate for re-election next November on the Democratic ticket.

Boy On Bicycle Bruised In Colliding With Auto

Richard Preisendorf, 11 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Preisendorf, 1112 East Fifth street, was slightly bruised, about 10:15 o'clock Saturday morning while riding a bicycle which collided with a car driven by E. F. Strickler, 1301 East Ninth street, at Fifth street and Engineer avenue.

According to the police report Strickler was driving his 1948 Studebaker sedan into a curb to park his car and the boy was riding over a ramp and ran into the side of the automobile.

Police made an investigation.

Dr. Pete Siegel Called To Duty

To Report At Navy Airfield At Pensacola, Fla.

Dr. Pete Siegel, lieutenant in the United States Navy, has been called to active duty for one year and leaves this morning for Pensacola, Flordia. Dr. Siegel since World War II has been on the inactive reserve and his orders call for "at least one year."

Dr. Siegel will spend two weeks at Pensacoloa taking a refresher course in aviation medicine after which he will go to Jacksonville, Flordia. At Jacksonville he will be assigned to an U. S. Naval Air Group.

For the past three years, since 1947, Dr. Siegel has been practicing medicine in Pettis county having his office at the Smithton clinic. He practiced with the late Dr. E. E. Holtzen and with Dr. Holtzen opened the clinic, and since the death of Dr. Holtzen he has been taking care of his own practice and that of Dr. Holtzen.

Dr. Siegel has been a member of the Reserves for ten years, and served for four years and six months active duty during the war. After the war he went to Smithton and began his private practice, but remained in the inactive reserve of the Navy.

The Smithton clinic will be closed for the present time, Dr. Siegel said while he is away on active duty.

Mrs. Siegel and their three children will remain in Smithton while Dr. Siegel is on duty.

China Will Be Top Problem For Marshall

Opposition To Special Law Is Voted Down

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP)—Young Lt. Col. George Catlett Marshall started worrying about China 25 years ago and he is going to find that old problem near the top of his troubles when he takes over as secretary of defense in the days just ahead.

He wrote then: "How the powers are to deal with China is a question almost impossible to answer."

He's going to find that question is the same. Only names and places will be different—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Gentralissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, Communist leader Mao Tze-Tung . . . and Formosa.

Formosa? When Marshall was a grade army officer on duty with the 15th infantry at Tientsin, Formosa was a Japanese colony. It was called by them Taiwan, and had been wrested from China many years before.

Formosa? Now it is a place, a situation, an issue at the bottom of a controversy deemed to have considerable indirect bearing in the ousting of defense secretary Louis Johnson whom President Truman is replacing with Genral Marshall.

What position will Marshall, himself a former secretary of state, take on secretary Dean Acheson's policy toward Formosa, the last stand of Chiang and his Nationalist government?

Been Written Off

The state department and the White House have written off the Chiang government as a failure and have said the U. S. has no intention of establishing bases on Formosa.

Gen. MacArthur thinks Formosa is of the utmost strategic importance in the defense line against Communism in the Far East. He has, in recent months, flown to Formosa to talk with Chiang. He has had to support of the military command in the Pentagon in his Formosa views.

On the other hand, the state department's announced policy on Formosa and portions of its "white paper" on China last summer embrace Marshall's opinions after his 1945 mission to China as a special envoy for President Truman.

This, of course, raises the definite possibility that MacArthur no longer will have a powerful spokesman in Washington for his Formosa policy.

MacArthur and Marshall will be the only two five-star generals in government service. But Marshall, as defense secretary, will be MacArthur's boss.

Marshall and Acheson are close personal friends. The secretary of state visits the general frequently.

While the China problem is an old and big one, there are others equally troublesome ready to be piled on Marshall's desk when he moves from the little office he has maintained in the Pentagon for the last five years to the big suite of the secretary of defense.

Down Opposition

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP)—Congress overrode stormy Republican protests Friday evening to approve a special law permitting General George C. Marshall to take over the civilian post of secretary of defense.

Marshall, a life-long soldier, was Army chief of staff during World War II and later became Secretary of State.

Lift Legal Barrier

The Senate agreed to lift the present legal barrier against appointment of a military man to the post—with the explicit understanding that the rule is waived for Marshall alone. The Senate approved the measure by a vote of 47 to 21.

The House has previously passed the bill, 220 to 105.

While the measure now goes to the White House, the Senate must still confirm Marshall to succeed Louis A. Johnson, who resigned under pressure on Tuesday.

Estimate 84 Died In Eruption

MANILA, Sept. 16—(AP)—Deadly hot ashes showered from erupting Mount Hibokhibok volcano killed an estimated 84 persons and burned 35 others as the inhabitants of three villages fled today to safer points on little Camiguin Island.

A Manila bulletin correspondent on Camiguin Island said 84 dead were reported from three villages. Some 57 bodies have been recovered from the town of Mambajao, about 10 miles north of Hibokhibok.

The Philippines Red Cross estimated casualties between 60 and 70 but said it had received no late word from its field representative on the island. Yesterday 51 dead were reported.

U. N. Request U. S. Troops Be Kept Available

Anxious They Be Ready To Act As A Police Force

By A. I. Goldbery

LAKE SUCCESS, Spt. 16—(AP)—The 35,000-member American Association for the United Nations called tonight for the United States to keep part of its armed forces always read to act as a U. N. police force.

It urged other members to do the same until the U. N. has its own military force. It said the U.S. should challenge other U. N. members to make a similar declaration.

Canada and the Philippines alread have announced the favor such a plan.

The association is an organization of citizens and civic organizations dedicated to U. N. charter principles. Its 46-member board of general assembly, directed chiefl to the U. N. delegation.

The fifth general assembly opens at Flushing Meadow Tuesday.

The current recommendations were signed by Dr. William Emerson, president, retired dean of architecture at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Clark Eichelberger, national director.

The association declares that "all efforts to resist aggression must be taken within the framework of the U. N. no matter how great the test may be—even to military operations on a greater scale than are now being used in Korea—resistance to aggression must not be an isolated act of war and self-defense. It must be police action in behalf of the law of the charter."

The association also said that the U. S. delegation should keep on urging other nations to send ground troop reinforcements to Korea.

AP Correspondent Cannot Use Phone

TOKYO, Sept. 16—(AP)—General MacArthur's headquarters today denied permission for Associted Press Correspondent Mill Shinn to use the military telephone from Korea to Tokyo.

Shinn, Korean newsman whose story of the American landing at Inchon was the first to reach the world, had used the military telephone regularly in the past.

Maj. Duel A. Williamson, a public information officer at MacArthur's headquarters, ruled that Shinn was not an accredited correspondent in the far east command.

Shinn, who has worked for the Associated Press in Korea since 1948, will be permitted to continue his writing, Williamson said, but his stories must be telephoned to Tokyo by other AP correspondents who are accredited to the MacArthur command.

Gen MacArthur Ashore To Visit The Front Line

Lt. Gen. Walker Says The War "Should Be Over Quickly" Unless Reds Have Reserves

TOKYO, SUNDAY, Sept. 16—(AP)—United Nations troops were reported today fighting inside Seoul on Korea's west coast and forcing the Reds into a confused retreat across the Naktong river in the southeast beachhead.

General Douglas MacArthur went ashore today at Inchon, where a 262-ship amphibious force began landings Friday. South Korea's radio said U. S. and South Korean marines have covered 22 miles from Inchon to the heart of Seoul while other columns rolled northwest and southwest.

A U. S. airforce spokesman reported that Kimpo, the biggest airfield in Korea, 15 miles northwest of Seoul, is in U. N. hands.

A U. N. communique today said the attackers losses were light, Red losses were "comparatively high," prisoners exceeded 300, and the enemy's "reaction has been slow and indecisive."

The first air attack against warships in the Inchon operation fizzled today. Two Russian-built Yaks bombed and strafed British and U. S. cruisers. Their bombs missed. Strafing bullets wounded three men on a British cruiser. The cruiser's anti-aircraft guns shot down one Yak.

Reds Threatened at Rear

The 140,000-man Red army at the southeast Korea beachhead, threatened from the rear by the Inchon landings, showed signs of cracking under a frontal offensive launched Saturday.

A U. S. First Corps spokesman told Associated Press correspondent Jack Mac Beth that "several hundred" Reds were retreating across the Naktong river ahead of advancing U. S. Second Division infantrymen.

A Second Divsion spokesman described the retreat as one of "vast, mad confusion."

The U. N. offensive at the beachhead had ground out gains up to five miles Saturday and made new ones up to a mile in the first hours Sunday.

The Eighth army communique reported that there was no indication of a general enemy withdrawal "or disintegration." This covered events up until late Saturday. The field reports, which mentioned enemy confusion on the Naktong front, appeared to be later.

As the Reds fell back, allied warplanes struck them in full fury.

An official spokesman on the second division front said the planes were "having a field day."

Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay told newsmen on his First Cavalry front north of Taegu that the advance was being impeded by mud and mines. Red resistance also was described as bitter.

Cavalry Troops Gain

The First Cavalry division is seeking to break out along roads leading 165 miles northwest to Seoul and link up with landing forces there.

Despite resistance, the Cavalry troopers gained another mile in the first three hours Sunday and were within two miles of flame-swept Waegwan, 12 miles northwest of Taegu.

The U. S. Eighth army commander, Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker said the war "should be over quickly"—unless the Reds have some reserves.

At Inchon, while General MacArthur toured front lines in a jeep, the captured port facilities teemed with activity. The U. N. communique said unloading "is now ahead of schedule."

It said the swift seizure of Inchon and establishment of strong positions on high ground to the east "give evidence of the complete surprise of our attack."

Cross Han River

The South Korean radio said a U. S. Marine column, led by 45-ton Pershing tanks, crossed the Han river near Kimp airfield, 15 miles northwest of Seoul, and entered Neungg Kok, a Seoul suburb.

The radio, quoting the South Korean high command, said another Marine column captured

Review Given On Approved Soil Building

Larger Sum In Assistance For Pettis County

The Pettis county PMA committee has finished a bit of research work in regard to 1950 approved soil building and conserving practices which have been completed to date, reports Jas. A. Harvey, chairman.

In their review they have found that nearly 20 miles of sod waterways, 75 miles of standard terraces, and 10 miles of diversion terraces have been completed or are nearing completion to date. Two-thirds of this work is being performed under the Group I or "Special" assistance program offered through the Pettis county Agricultural Conservation Program this year. 99 farm ponds have been constructed and approved by the county committee to date and of this summer all but seven have been constructed under the Group I program. The committee estimates that the normal amount of fertilizer will be used with grass and legumes this year to earn a portion of the assistance approved for Group II, or the regular soil building practices. They estimate that to date only 25,000 tons limestone has been spread compared to a total of 46,000 tons spread in 1949. A lot of work has been accomplished but the major part of it has been under the special allotment for Group I practices.

Anxious On Completion

In view of these figures and the fact that two-thirds of the program year is already gone, the county committee is concerned as to the completion of the regular practices approved to earn the Group II assistance of $100,000 allotted this year.

Now that we have had a few days of clear weather and hay is being harvested and preparations made for wheat seeding, the county committee urges farmers to order their limestone now if fields are available for spreading where an application of lime is needed. They do not, however, advise the application of limestone merely for the purpose of earning or completing the approved assistance, but if the field needs an application of limestone and the use of the field will permit spreading at the present time it is advisable to have the lime spread now rather than to delay the job until a later date.

Consideration should also be given to the use of commercial fertilizer with the seeding of fall grains, wheat, rye or barley and grass. The seeding of grass or legume before January 1, 1951, with the grain crop as a nurse crop will meet the required specifications for credit on the fertilizer.

Ground should be worked and seeded now for the pasture improvement practice with the required amounts of limestone and fertilizer worked into the seedbed. An early seeding of these plots will permit a good growth of the plants before winter and possibly a short grazing period yet this fall.

Increased Sum

Pettis county has been allotted a larger sum than usual for assistance in performing 1950 soil building and conserving practices and the county committee urges that advantage be taken of this fact by performance of more of the permanent type soil conserving practices as well as production practices.

Weather conditions are so very uncertain that the performance of any of the practices should not be delayed until later unless crops on the fields or other vital factors make it impossible to complete the job now. The county committee invites farmers to call at their office, 209½ South Ohio, Sedalia, to discuss any problems or plans they have for the performance of their approved practices.

The telephone exchange at the Pentagon building in Washington has 68,600 miles of trunk lines.

Give Support Price on Soybeans

The U. S. Department of Agriculture today announced that the national average support price for the 1950-crop soybeans, based on 80 per cent of the September 1 parity price, will be $2.06 a bushel. This compares with a national average support price of $2.11 a bushel on the 1949 crop.

To be eligible for support, the soybeans must grade No. 4 or better, and contain not more than 14 per cent moisture. Appropriate premiums for moisture content below 14 per cent, and discounts for test weight, splits and damage will be established by the Commodity Credit Association.

Price support will be effected through loans and purchase agreements available from time of harvest through January 31, 1951, and obtainable through county committees of the Production and Marketing Administration.

'The Lady From UNICEF' Discovers UN Children's Fund Really Works

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Miss Pat Palmer is a tall, efficient-looking woman who has an emotional attachment for goat's milk cheese.

It came about when Miss Palmer, a representative of UNICEF (United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund), was operating in Montenegro, a section in southwestern Yugoslavia. To the natives, she was "The Lady from UNICEF," and thus the symbol of nice things like soap and milk and blankets and medical care for their children.

They didn't have much to show their appreciation. But everywhere she went, she was invited into their homes. And in every home, her host dragged out a bottle of Rakija, a strong brandy made from plums or other fruit, and a slab of goat's milk cheese.

* * *

To her, that gesture and that cheese grew to be a big reward for her long hours and hard work. She visits many nations in Europe, checking on the results of UNICEF's work with the poverty-stricken children.

CLEAN-UP WITH UNICEF SOAP: These war orphans at a children's home in Prague enjoy a post-war luxury—all the soap they want for once—after a shipment from UNICEF was received.

SAVED BY UNICEF MEDICINE: In a hospital near Prague, Olga Dunkova, two-and-a-half-year-old Czechoslovakian gypsy girl, recuperates from tubercular meningitis. Her life was saved by streptomycin provided by UNICEF.

"You know," she says, with a proud glint in her eye, "this thing really works, strangely enough.

"This thing" is asort of international cooperative, with the cooperating nations chipping in whatever they have. Some give money, some give supplies, others give both. At present, 54 countries and more than 30 territories are giving and, of these, 23 are receiving. UNICEF distributes supplies, using only one basic criterion—need.

* * *

Some of the gifts from nations are pitifully small, but all are used to good advantage. Greece, for example, still probably the country hardest hit by the war, could only give large quantities of its own raisins. Bulgaria contributed fruit jam, Norway gave cod liver oil, South Africa peanut butter—and Austria gave free transit across its borders.

Some of the gifts require complicated international red-tape before they can be used. Poland, for example, once contributed money, in the form of its own zlotys. UNICEF found it hard to buy anything with this currency. Finally, they arranged to buy X-ray equipment in Holland. The Dutch company turned the zlotys over to the Dutch National Bank which used them for the expenses of the Dutch UNICEF mission in Poland.

Miss Palmer, a former Toronto newspaperwoman, was a correspondent during the war. She liked Europe, and hooked up with UNICEF as a means of staying there.

In one little Yugoslavian town, Zvornik, Miss Palmer's car was parked at the dusty market place. When she came back, she found a ragged girl cleaning it off with straw she had picked off the ground. The girl explained that she wanted to thank "The Lady from UNICEF" for helping her.

While UNICEF's program is not limited to Europe, today most of its work is going on there. All assisted countries, which have matched UNICEF contributions with local products to the tune of $75,000,000, administer the aid within their orders. Altogether, UNICEF figures, its work has provided a daily meal for 8,000,000 children, clothing for 4,000,000, medical aid for 25,000,000 and equipment to produce safe milk for 4,000,000.

As a typical case, Miss Palmer remembers a wide-eyed Czechoslovakian gypsy child named Olga Dunkova. Olga is now two and a half. But she was hardly more than a baby when she got tuberculosis, then developed tubercular meningitis. UNICEF streptomycin saved her life. Now, recuperating in a hospital near Prague, she's a living symbol of UNICEF effectiveness.

It is incidents like that which make Miss Palmer say that "this thing really works."

Safe After Rescue From Well

Little Ronnie Mysinger woke up for this picture with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Mysinger, after the 15-month-old boy's rescue from a dry, abandoned well under his home at Rainier, Ore. He screamed, sobbed and then fell asleep while men dug for three hours to free him from the 12-foot deep spot where he lodged in the narrow hole. (AP Wirephoto)

Slow! Bridges Out

DU QUOIN, Ill. — (AP) — Somebody in Perry county has it in for bridges. The county recently lost two in one week. A 20-foot steel framework bridge, reported damaged by an overloaded truck, was gone when county commissioners went to investigate. The girders had been cut with a torch.

The other bridge, an 80-foot wooden span, collapsed when its middle section burned out. Sheriff Thomas O'Keefe said the fire was set.

Diesel Voice Changes

CHICAGO—(AP)—The voice of Santa Fe locomotive No. 29 has changed. The switch was made on the diesel locomotive in an experiment. The railroad explains it theis way:

"In the congested eastern areas of the country, some complaints have been lodged that the regular diesel horn is too harsh and startling. The new voice is a five chime Nathan whistle which is basically a musical instrument. When in use, the simultaneous sounding of the various single tones produces a musical chord or chime effect."

Just Reminder That This Is Still Same Big World

By E. V. W. Jones

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 16 — (AP) — It's a small world? No, it's still the same vast globe the ancients knew, with the same misty limbo of the lost.

We think it is small because of speeding wheels and wings and the voice of radio which comes out of the void. A mile is only a minute's travel by wheel or a few seconds' flight—but it is still a mile.

The miles add up to a vast unknown into which a hundred and more persons have flown or sailed within brief memory, to be swallowed up just as ships were swallowed in the old sailing days.

The Sandra carried radio. It was a 350-foot freighter which sailed with 12 men on board from Miami to Savannah. There 300 tons of insecticide were loaded for Puerto Cabello, Venezuela. The Sandra sailed—and disappeared without a trace. On June 16, in the "small world" year of 1950, search was abandoned. The fate of the craft and the dozen on board was written down as an official mystery.

Where are the men and women and two babies—32 persons in all—who happily boarded a plane at San Juan, Puerto Rico, and flew 1,000 miles toward Miami? A radio message at 4 a. m. Dec. 27, 1948, reported them 50 miles south of their goal. They never arrived. Searchers scanned 310,000 miles of sea and land, but the lusive limbo into which they flew was on no map.

Force On Maneuvers

On Jan. 18, 1949, a great task force of the United States Navy was on maneuvers south of Bermuda. That same day a British airliner, the Ariel, vanished in the thin air through which it flew. The plane had left Bermuda with 20 persons on board on its way from London to Chile. The naval force abandoned its maneuvers. Aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers combed the waters with thousands of pairs of sharp eyes on watch. They learned no hint of the Ariel's fate.

A year earlier, on Jan. 31, 1948, another British plane, the Star Tiger, approached Bermuda with 29 on board. The craft radioed its position several times. Then silence enveloped it, and mystery. To this day, no trace has been uncovered.

An older but more perplexing mystery is that of the five torpedo planes. They took off from the navy's Fort Lauderdale air station on Dec. 5, 1945, for a navigational training flight. The hours passed and darkness fell. Anxious officers called to them by radio and were answered only with silence.

The hour passed when their fuel would be exhausted and search planes were sent out. Among the searchers was a big, lumbering rescue craft, a PBM with 14 men on board.

None of the five torpedo planes with the 14 crewmen were found despite the greatest search in Florida's history. Nor did the PBM rescue craft ever return.

These and other modern mysteries have established a roll of about 135 persons who went forth confidently into a world they thought small.

But it is the same big world the ancients knew into which men and their machines and ships can disappear without a trace.

Service Better Getting Home The Wounded

Many Saved By Greater Skill and 'Wonder' Drugs

By Frank Carey
AP Science Reporter

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 — (AP) —The chief of the army's largest hospital says Korean battle casualties brought home so far look "a great deal better" than homecoming wounded of the last war—partly, at least, because they have all been flown home.

By the large, wounds are much the same as those received in the European and Pacific conflicts, but the men are in much better physical and mental shape, says Maj. Gen. Paul H. Streit, commanding general of the army medical center which includes Walter Reed hospital.

Some Chief Factors

"There are various factors involved in bringing these men home in such wonderful condition," he said in an interview, and listed these:

1. Speedier first-aid on the battlefield—thanks to "better organization and more alert personnel."

2. A better supply of "wonder" drugs such as penicillin and greater skill in using them.

"We know a great deal more about preventing overwhelming infection than we did throughout the last war," Streit said.

"These wounds either don't get infected at all, or the infection is relatively mild. Thus, the men don't become gaunt and worn-out. They remain in relatively fine condition, and that's the way we get them back here.

3. Greater skill in the use of whole blood and plasma in combating shock—an often-fatal result of wounds.

"We've learned the value of administering larger quantities of blood," said the general. "We've also learned how to administer blood faster into the arteries instead of into the veins."

4. Use of air transport exclusively, so far, in bringing casualties from Tokyo to this country.

The Military Air Transport Service (MATS) woes the transport job. Mats also uses helicopters to carry certain casualties from front lines back to base areas in Korea. Transport from Korea to Japan is by either air force planes or naval ships.

Evacuated to this country are casualties not expected to return to duty in 120 days.

"There's a tremendous moral factor in bringing casualties back promptly to this country and to hospitals in areas near their homes," said General Streit.

"If a boy is lying in Tokyo, he won't heal so well as he would if he were in a hospital here in this country where his mother, friends and relatives can visit.

"And besides the psychological factor involved, this rapid transportation by air enables the patient to be brought quickly to places where we have the very best experts and where definitive treatment can be started right away."

In the last war, he said, air transport of casualties back to this country was "very limited" until the latter part of the war.

"And even then," he added, "only about one third of the casualties brought back were transported by air."

General Streit said another factor that had benefitted early casualties of the Korean conflict was the availability, right from the start, of army doctors trained in specialties.

Since the war the army medical department has set up a system of "graduate training" of its own doctors — to keep them in step with the latest developments in all fields of medicine and surgery.

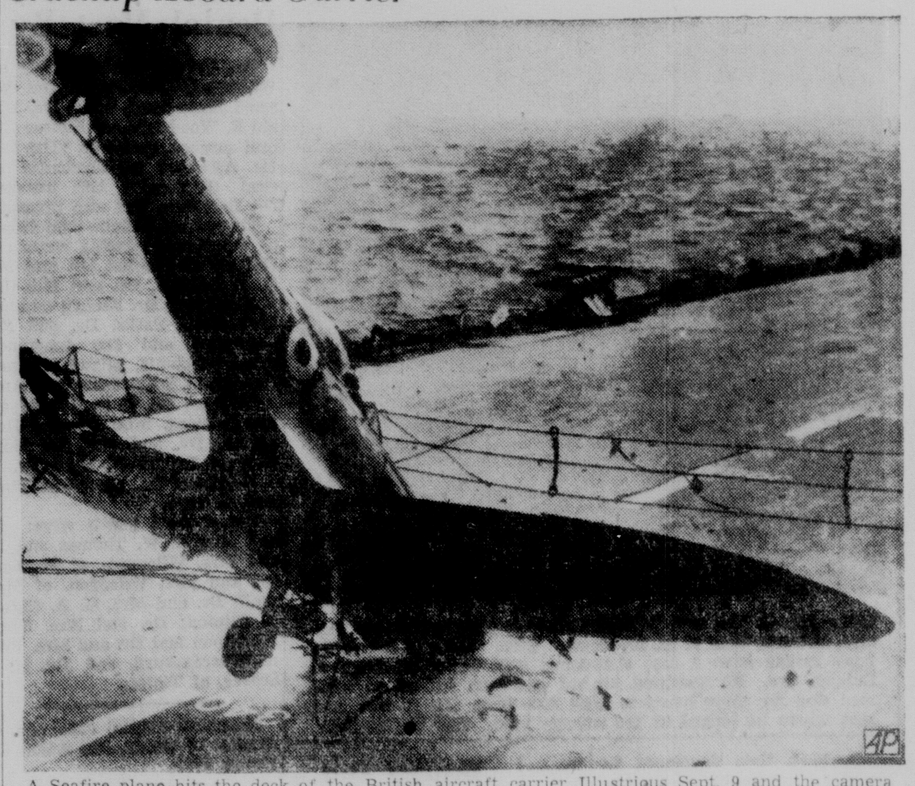

"Doctors who are over there in Korea and Japan," Streit said, "have been in these graduate programs, and they are wonderfully trained in the latest things in orthopedics (bone and joint specialties), general surgery, medicine and public health.

"We never had a good training program of that kind until after World War II."

The general said, however, that the army would need help later from doctors outside the service.

Crackup Aboard Carrier

A Seafire plane hits the deck of the British aircraft carrier Illustrious Sept. 9 and the camera catches the action at the moment of impact. Fragments from the craft fly around the deck and flight deck hands start for the plane from their gunpits. The incident occurred during the visit of the First Lord of the Admiralty, Viscount Hall, to week-end fliers of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve who were spending their annual fortnight's training aboard the carrier. Miss Bradney Be A Minister Of Education

Installation Be At Christian Church This Evening

Miss Leta Bradney will be installed as minister of education by the First Christian church of Sedalia this evening at 7:30 p. m. when the church will conduct a formal installation service. Rev. David M. Bryan, pastor of the church, will be assisted by Mr. Morris H. Pullin, the Christian church's state director of religious education. Members of the church board, the local Christian Education committee, and the church school teachers and officers will take part in the services. The choir, under the direction of Mrs. H. O. Foraker, will provide special music.

Miss Leta Bradney

Following the service of installation, the Christian Women's Fellowship of which Mrs. Cecil Owen is president, will hold a reception honoring Miss Bradney.

Miss Bradney came to Sedalia from Fort Smith, Arkansas where she had served as director of religious education for five years. Prior to this her service had included two years with the First Christian church at El Reno, Oklahoma.

She is a graduate of Phillips university, Enid, Okla., from which school she was granted the degrees of bachelor of arts from the Bible college and bachelor of science in education. On May 9, 1943 she was ordained to the Christian ministry.

In addition to her service in the local church, Miss Bradney has been active in the state and district program of Christian churches in Arkansas, and for the past four years she has served as member of the Arkansas State Board of Christian Education and as district chairman of intermediate work. For two years she was director of the Northwest area Chi Rho camp at Lake Fort Smith and has also served on the faculty of other intermediate camps and of the young people's summer conference in the state and district.

Taught In Training Schools

Miss Bradney has had considerable experience in the field of leadership education, having had experience in administration and in teaching in laboratory training schools; in the district schools of leadership education and the cooperative program in the Fort Smith churches.

In Sedalia her activities will not be limited to any particular age group but she will be working to develop a balanced, effective program of religious education in the church.

Members and friends of the congregation are welcome at the installation and reception.

Home Wedding Sunday Afternoon

Miss Judith Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Perkins, of Nelson, formerly of Versailles, and Mr. Jack Hufford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hufford, of Nelson, were married at the home of the bride's parents, at 2:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, September 10, with the Rev. Theodore Roark, pastor of the Assembly of God church, reading the single ring service.

The bride chose for her wedding a street length dress of blue moire taffeta.

The bride's mother was attired in a dress of blue crepe and the mother of the bridegroom wore a brown crepe dress.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents immediately following the ceremony at which the wedding cake was served with ice cream.

Baskets of gladioli decorated the home.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Amos Perkins of Sweet Springs, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Weldon-Boothe Nuptials

An arrangement of palms, ferns, baskets of white gladioli and white chrysanthemums, together with lighted candelabra, formed the altar background in the First Baptist church for the wedding ceremony at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, August 27, when Miss Virginia Ellen Weldon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Weldon, of Breckenridge, became the bride of Mr. Robert F. Boothe, son of Mrs. Lena Boothe, of the Quincy apartments, Sedalia, and the late Mr. Robert F. Boothe, Sr. The Reverend Jerry Seabough read the double ring ceremony.

Nuptial music preceding the ceremony played by Mrs. C. Dudley Brandon, included "Pierce A Notre Dame" (Boellmann "Evening Star" from Tannhauser (Wagoner), "Benediction from the Marriage Messe" (Dubois) "Intermezzo" (Provost), "I Love Thee" (Greig), and "Indian Love Call" (Friml.)

Mr. Robert Green, of Kansas City, sang "Through the Years," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer." The Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's Wedding March also were used for the processional and recessional.

The candles were lighted by Miss Dottie Weir of Kansas City, and Mrs. Harold Salmon, of Kansas City, Kas.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a tailored white linen suit, with a white picture hat and white accessories. She carried a white Bible and a bouquet of lavender orchids with long white satin streamers.

Miss Jackie Chapman of Independence, as maid of honor, wore a tailored beige suit with navy accessories.

Miss Carolyn Hampy, of Stover, as bridesmaid, chose a brown suit with brown accessors and she and Miss Chapman carried bouquets of pink and white orchids with pink and white satin streamers.

Mr. Jerry Calhoun of North Platte, Neb., served as best man and Mr. Bobby Weldon, of Breckenridge, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Mr. Charles F. Weldon, of Breckenridge, Mr. James S. Weldon, of Chicago, Ill., Mr. Jack R. Weldon, of Kansas City, Kas., and Mr. Thomas E. Weldon, of Kansas City, brothers of the bride, and Mr. William F. Volkner, of Kansas City, and Mrs. J. R. Bone, of Buffalo, were ushers.

The bride's mother wore a pastel pink eyelet dress with white accessories and a corsage of lavender orchids.

The bridegroom's mother wore a grey dress with black accessories and a lavender orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the patio at the McDonald tearoom for 300 guests.

Miss Mary Greenwood of Breckenridge, had charge of the guest book.

The bride is a graduate of the Breckenridge high school and attended Central Missouri State college in Warrensburg for three years and is a member of the Delta Sigma Epsilon sorority.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Smith-Cotton high school and was graduated in May from the Central Missouri State college, in Warrensburg, with a degree in mathematics. He is a member of the Kappa Mu Epsilon, honorary mathematics fraternity, and the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity. During the summer he acted as a Red Cross swimming instructor at Liberty Park and Hubbard poois.

After a short wedding trip in St. Louis and Denver, Colo., the couple returned to Sedalia, where they will reside at Weathers Kort.

Mr. Booth has accepted a position as instructor in mathematics at the Lincoln, Mo., high school.

Attending from Sedalia were the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Lena Booth, his grandmother, Mrs. Maude Scott, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Weathers, Mrs. T. E. Donaldson, Miss Eva Evans, Mrs. P. V. Scotten, Miss Freda Mueller, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Stuart and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Middleton.

Party in St. Louis For Couple to Wed

One of the first pre-nuptial affairs given for Miss Patricia Quinn, of St. Louis, daughter of Mrs. Joseph S. Quinn, of Sedalia, and her fiance, Dr. William Martin Eisele, of St. Louis, was a party by a group of friends at the Park Plaza hotel, St. Louis, last week.

There were 26 guests, among them Dr. and Mrs. John Eusterman, of Mankato, Minn., the latter the former Miss Mart Lu Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Reid, of Sedalia.

Windsor-Dilthey Nuptials

Before an altar setting of palms, baskets of flowers and lighted candles in tall standards Miss Mary Martha Windsor, of 620 South Massachusetts avenue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Windsor, of Boonville, became the bride of Mr. Charles Byron Dilthey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dilthey, of Beaman, at 4:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, August 20, at the First Baptist church. The double ring service was read by the Rev. L. W. Verts.

Mrs. Clyde Williams, at the organ, played the "Indian Love Call", "Always" and "Clair de Lune" and accompanied Mr. Robert Green, of Kansas City, who sang "Through the Years," "O, Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional wedding marches were used for the processional and recessional.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father and mother, wore a gown of white satin and nylon net with a net cathedral train, bodice waist and long-fitted sleeves tapering to a point at the wrists. Her veil was finger-tip length with headdress of seed pearls framing her face. She wore her great grandmother's ring and a single strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. Her bridal bouquet was of white roses and stephanotis.

Miss Cornelia Windsor, of Boonville, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore an embroidered Nile green organdy gown over Nile green taffeta, designed with high neckline, round collar, cap sleeves and full skirt. She wore elbow length lace gloves of matching shade, green ballerina shoes, and carried yellow gladioli.

Miss Frances Windsor, of Boonville, and Mrs. J. W. Marlin, sister-in-law, of Sedalia, were bridesmaids and their dresses of yellow were designed identical to that of the maid of honor with their gloves and shoes of the shade matching their dresses. They carried bronze gladioli.

Miss Eula Windsor and Miss Adele Windsor, sisters of the bride, both of Boonville, lighted the candles. Their dresses were also like that of the maid of honor except in color. They were of orchid with matching gloves and shoes and they carried candies in holders of lace and stephanotis and wore stephanotis in their hair.

Mr. Estil Loesing, of Sedalia, served as best man and ushers were Mr. John Earl Dwyer, cousin of the bridegroom, of Columbia; Mr. J. W. Marlin, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Mr. Thomas Bast, both of Sedalia and Mr. Edward Callis, of Hughesville.

The bride's mother wore a dress of beige shade with brown accessories and the bridegroom's mother was in navy blue with navy accessories. Each wore a corsage of light pink carnations.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church parlor which was decorated with bouquets of gladioli and other cut flowers.

Mrs. James Ripley, of Topeka, Kas., and Miss Helen McFatrich, of Sedalia, cut the cake and Miss Mary Ann Hildebrandt and Miss Dorothy Williams presided at the punch bowl.

Following the reception the couple left on a two-week wedding trip to Colorado and are now at home at 620 South Massachusetts avenue. For traveling the bride chose a costume of an ivory-white suit with dark green accessories and her corsage was an orchid.

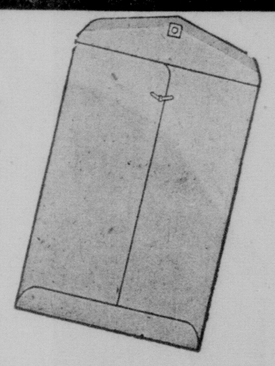

Miss Anna Lee Harvey was in charge of the guest book and Miss Rose Marie Reed, assisted by Mrs. Jay Howard, was in charge of opening the gifts.

The bride is a graduate of Boonville high school and attended Central college at Fayette. She is a member of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority. For the past two years she has been employed in the office of the prosecuting attorney of Pettis county.

Mr. Dilthey is a graduate of the Pilot Grove high school and is engaged in farming.

Marshall Plan Dutch Treat; a New Fedora

ECA CEREMONY: Lee Smith had to climb a ladder.

By NEA Foreign Service

BOXTEL, Holland —(NEA)— The keistamper of Boxtel has a jaunty new American hat, courtesy of the Marshall Plan.

It was an unofficial addition to the ECA aid being given Holland, and no funds had to be voted for it. The hat was provided by Lee R. Smith, labor adviser to the ECA mission to the Netherlands. And the town officials provided a stepladder, since the keistamper, legendary carnival citizen of Boxtel, does his work on stilts.

The keistamper started the whole thing when Smith showed up on a tour of Dutch railways electrified with ECA to help. The keistamper, clowning around for the occasion, whistled at Smith's "semi-western" fedora and suggested it would make a nice substitute for his own battered hat.

Smith pretended to take it seriously, and so did the town. They set a date for a ceremony, full of formalities, and Smith came back to Boxtel with a new hat.

And after the speeches, 2000 townsfolk in their Sunday best cheered while Smith climbed the stepladder and made the presentation, putting the Marshall Plan hat right where it belonged.

The keistamper, who has a loud voice, hasn't stopped talking about the Marshall Plan since.

Professions Still Popular With Czechs

PRAGUE—(AP)—Though miners and factory workers enjoy a relatively high social and economic status in Czechoslovakia, young people are still eager to enter the professions.

The Prague newspaper "Lidova Demokracie" has reported that so many tried to enroll for medicine and pharmacy in the fall semester that the universities cannot take all of them. On the other hand, it said, classes in mining, iron engineering and electrotechnical studies still are not full.

U. S. Seeks Wasp in Siam

BANGKOK —(AP)— The United States Department of Agriculture has started a one-year investigation of fruit flies and their enemies in Siam in the hopes it will find a Siamese wasp to defeat a plague of fruit flies in Hawaii.

The Hawaiian fruit fly is believed to have started during the war with the introduction of some infested fruit. Insecticides have failed to eradicate it.

Marines and Infantry Into Seoul and Fighting Inside City—Kimpo Field Taken

Yongdungpo, an industrial suburb.

U. N. units there were reported to have crossed the Han and pushed on inside Seoul, a city of 1,000,000 which was South Korea's capital when the Red invasion began June 25.

South Korea's naval chief, Rear Adm. Sohn Uun Il, told AP correspondent Relman Morin at Inchon "I do not believe the North Koreans have any organized army units this far north."

There were two Red battalions near Inchon when the landings began. The withering naval barrage, the bombings by swarms of carrier planes and the waves of landing forces quickly put them to flight.

Former Sedalians In Airplane Crash

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rose, Charleston, S. C., were injured in a plane crash at Charleston on September 3, according to information received by Mr. Rose's mother, Mrs. D. A. Rose, 1400 East Fourteenth street. Both were severely injured but are well on the road to recovery now, according to letters received by Mrs. Rose.

The accident occured on Sunday afternoon when Mr. Rose, a licensed pilot started to land at the Charleston airport. The engine on the plane "knonked out" and the plane crashed into a grove of trees beside the airport.

The plane was demolished.

Mr. Rose suffered a severe back injury and it is necessary for him to be in a cast from his arm pits down past his waist. He also received a bad gash on his head.

Mrs. Rose suffered a fractured elbow.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose had been in Sedalia fair week and started back to their home the latter part of August stopping at Memphis, Tenn. for a visit with relatives and arrived at their home in Charleston on Saturday, September 2, this trip being made by motor car.

While visiting here and attending the fair, Mr. Rose was the victim of a pick pocket artist who took his billfold with $97.00 in it.

He is employed at the Charleston Navy Yards.

Cast Is Selected To Present Farce

The Sedalia Community Playhouse, Inc., is hard at work on production activities in connection with "Blithe Spirit" an improbable farce in three acts, by Noel Coward. Larry Riley, producer has selected the following Sedalians for the cast: Mrs. Charles Lupsha, Mrs. Herman Myers, Michael Bogutski, Mrs. Fred Rose, Mrs. Leonard Peabody and Mrs. John Metcalf.

"Blithe Spirit" will be the first of four presentations of outstanding drama, appearing two nights, October 10 and 11.

In addition to rehearsing for "Blithe Spirit," personnel of the organization are assisting the Lions' club in the production of the comedy, "Crazy Daze," as a contribution to the community-wide project.

Sedalians At Hennings Rally

Several Sedalians attended the opening rally of Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., Democratic candidate for United States senator held at Moberly on Friday. The meeting attracted Democrats from throughout the state for both the afternoon reception and night speaking held in the Moberly auditorium and city hall.

Royal Cowger and Jim Reed, the latter city councilman from the third ward, attended the rally, while Pete T. O'Brien and District Governor D. Kelly Scruton of Lions International attended both the rally and the Moberly Lions club on the official visitation visit of Governor Scruton.

Mrs. Scruton accompanied her husband to both Moberly and Keytesville, where an official visitation was made to the Keytesville Lions Club on Thursday night.

Both Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Close won ribbons for their exhibits in the fair.

FBI Up On 'Commie' Moves

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP)—Attorney-General McGrath said tonight the FBI knows "the most minute details of Communist strategy" in America.

This means "details destined only for the party's secret and inner councils," McGrath said.

While "the task of keeping abreast of the Communists is becoming more difficult," the attorney-general acknowledged, he said:

"The FBI, as the governmental agency charged with the protection of the internal security of the United States, is right on top of the situation."

In an address prepared for the National Association of Women Lawyers, the cabinet officer said that in recent months the Communist party has been going deeper underground, using "extreme caution" to conceal identities and hide its program.

"But I can emphatically assure you," the attorney-general said, "that though the Communists might feel that, through deception and stealth, they are evading detection, they are badly mistaken."

Urges "Soft Drinks" For Boys In Korea

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP)—Two temperance organizations urged today that the army give the boys in Korea more fruit juices and plain American water instead of beer.

Clayton M. Wallace, general superintendent of the Temperance League of America, said in a statement:

"Surely, if beer can be supplied, wholesome fruit juices and soft drinks can be made available where the local water supply is unsafe."

Bishop Wilbur E. Hammaker, executive vice-president of the board of temperance of the Methodist church, asked in a separate statement why the GI's can't have soda pop, fruit and vegetable juices, or just "plain, pure American water."

Both expressed concern over the chances of the young fighting men becoming alcoholics.

Detroit Begins Ticket Sale For World Series

DETROIT, Sept. 16—(AP)—With fingers crossed, the Detroit Tigers today announced they will accept applications for World Series tickets.

If Detroit wins the Aemrican League pennant, and barring weather delays and playoff of ties, there will be three series games here, Oct. 7, 8, and 9.

Tom Hennings Urges Veto Of McCarran Bill

Bill Is Threat To Civil Rights Other Than Communists

MEXICO, Mo., Sept. 16—(AP)—The Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator from President Truman's home state urged the President tonight to veto the McCarran bill—a measure Mr. Truman already has expressed some doubts about.

The measure would provide for registration of Communists and would put them in concentration camps in case of a national emergency. The President told his news conference recently it offered a threat to civil rights of people other than Communists.

He said instead of catching Reds it probably would drive them underground.

Contrary To Democrats

The stand taken tonight by the Missouri senatorial candidate, Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., of St. Louis, would go contrary to the views of most Senate Democrats. The Senate passed the stiff measure overwhelmingly last Tuesday.

Hennings, a former congressman who wants to beat Republican U. S. Senator Forrest C. Donnell, told ninth district Young Democrats in a speech prepared for delivery:

"I believe that this measure, which seeks to punish individuals for what they think—for their honest views—and their associations, is a perverted and monstrous piece of legislation jeopardizing the rights of all citizens.

"Conceived in and born of fear, it is a result of pandering to the demands of those who have little regard for democracy and its processes we fight to preserve. x x x

"It is an un-American bill and I fervently trust" the President will veto it, Hennings said.

Must Buy What We Need

He said, "it is essential and vital x x x that we tax ourselves to the most to pay for the sinews of war so necessary for victory.

"While this emergency lasts we must buy only what we need and cannot do without. There must be no hoarding of foods of which there are ample stocks. And there must be no profiteers—no war millionaires — collecting money from the American people."

The Truman administration has been right, he said, in not stockpiling war materiel—weapons of war that become obsolete so swiftly.

"The armament of World War II would be woefully weak and ineffective when compared with today's x x x monstrous and devastating instruments of warfare x x x."

"If this (stockpiling) policy had been pursued, which the Republican party—the party of isolationism—now advocates, then this country would have scattered to the winds countless billions of dollars that it now has available for the munitions of war."

Now, he said, it is "just a simple choice of spending money without consideration of the cost or of spending lives without consideration of the cost.

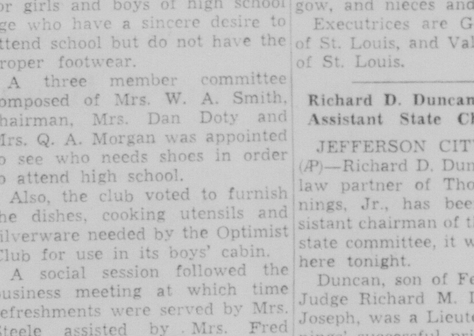

"Every day this tragic conflict can be shortened and our future security assured will save the lives of countless of our young men. x x x Blood in the U. S. A. still is more valuable than gold or silver."

Stover Couple Married On September 3

Miss Ann Elaine Rastorfer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James U. Rastorfer of Stover, became the bride of Mr. John Wayne Snelling, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Snelling, also of Stover on Sunday afternoon, September 3, at the First Baptist church in Stover. The Rev. W. B. McGraw of Warrensburg performed the double ring ceremony before a setting of baskets of pink and white dahlias, ferns and palms. The floral arrangement was made by Mrs. Reed Blackman and Mrs. Mollie Vickery.

Before the ceremony Miss Lavona Hughes at the piano played traditional wedding music and accompanied Mrs. Dewey Hotaling who sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly." For the processional Miss Hughes played "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin by Warner. Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was used as the recessional.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father wore a full floor length gown of ivory wedding satin with a sweetheart neckline and a fitted bodice which came to a point in front and buttoned at the back with tiny self-covered buttons. The long sleeves also buttoned with tiny self covered buttons, tapered to a point over the hand. Her finger-tip veil of illusion fell from a beaded and pearl-set tiara. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom and carried an arm bouquet of white gladiolas.

Miss Wilma Snelling, a sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of pastel green satin with matching mitts and headdress and carried a colonial bouquet of shell pink asters.

Miss Jeanne Snelling, also a sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. She wore a pink satin floor length gown with matching mitts and headdress. She also carried a colanial bouquet of shell pink asters.

Joanne Kotster, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a blue taffeta floor length gown with matching headdress.

The best man was Mr. Donald Snelling, brother of the bridegroom. A cousin of the bride Mr. Frank Lilly of Kansas City, was groomsman. Ushers were Mr. Elray Koester and Mr. Alfred Hieken. All of the men wore white carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. Rastorfer, mother of the bride wore black with red accessories and a corsage of red carnations. Mrs. Snelling, mother of the bridegroom, wore blue with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held in church parlors which were decorated with bouquets of white gladiolas, pink and white streamers and white bells. The large four-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom was encircled with small pink dahlias. After the first piece of wedding cake had been cut by the bride and bridegroom, Mrs. Paul Wilson cut the cake and Mrs. Elroy Koester assisted in serving it. It was served with ice cream and punch to 120 guests. Mrs. Lillian Lilly of Kansas City, aunt of the bride, served the punch. Others assisting with the serving were Mrs. Ernest Hughes, Misses Grace and Mildred Wilson and Miss Lavona Hughes. Mrs. Wilson also presided over the guest book.

After the reception the couple left on a wedding trip of unannounced destination. For her going away ensemble, the bride chose a dark gray suit with light gray and red accessories. Her corsage was of red carnations.

The bride is a graduate of the Stover high school with the class of 1949. The past school year she attended Southwest Baptist college at Bolivar where she was an honor student.

The bridegroom was graduated from the Barnett high school in the class of 1943. During World War II he served in the U. S. army in the Pacific area where he was awarded the Purple Heart. Since his return from service he has been associated with his father in farming southwest of Stover. He is now employed as a clerk in the Stover post office, having been appointed to that position by the U. S. postal department on June 1 of this year.

Both the bride and bridegroom are active members of the Stover Baptist church.

Other than those from Stover and vicinity attending the wedding were Mrs. Lillian Lilly, Mr. Frank Lilly, Miss Jeanne Snelling, Miss Lela Madole and Mr. Willard Madole of Kansas City; Rev. and Mrs. W. B. McGraw of Warrensburg; Mrs. Chester Beach of Kansas; Mr. Charles F. Rastorfer, Stockton, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Franklin and daughter of Linn Creek; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson of Versailles and Mr. and Mrs. Gerhardt Wittrock and family, Mrs. Ann Rastorfer, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Cook and son Kinton and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Marriott and family of Gravois Mills.

Sedalia Chapter O.E.S. Honor Past Matrons and Patrons

Sedalia Chapter No. 57 Order of the Eastern Star honored its own and visiting Past Matrons and Past Patrons with a party Tuesday evening, September 12, at the Masonic Temple.

'Trying To Forget'

Mimi Medart, 16, of St. Louis, Mo., wears a smile and dark glasses as she leaves a plane in London after a flight from Paris. She said she was "trying to forget" King Farouk. Her name was linked romantically with the 30-year-old Egyptian monarch's when it was reported they met last month at a French resort hotel. She said the king is going to Cairo for Christmas and "friends" have invited her to go there, too. Her mother said they would spend Christmas in either Egypt or India. (AP Photo)

Scott-Chipman Marriage Saturday P.M.

In a pretty wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Joseph Chipman, Sixth street and Grand avenue, their daughter, Marjory, became the bride of Mr. Oscar Lee Scott, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lee Scott of Dal-Whi-Mo Court, at 4:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The nuptial ceremony, performed in the presence of seventy-five relatives and close friends, was read by the Reverend H. U. Campbell, pastor of the Fifth Street Methodist church.

The bride-to-be, preceded by her attendants, her sisters, Mrs. Jack Shoemaker of Richmond Heights, as matron of honor, and Miss Josephine Chipman, as maid of honor, descended the steps into the spacious hall, where she was met by her father, who accompanied her to the living room, where she was given in marriage.

The bridegroom met her there, accompanied by his best man, Lieut. R. M. Radasch, U.S.N.R., of St. Louis.

The marriage vows were exchanged as the bridal party stood before the mantel, banked with palms, white salal, red and white roses, and numerous ivory lighted tapers.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Fred M. Ross, at the piano, and Mr. Abe Rosenthal, violinist, played "Intermezzo," from Mascagni's Cavalleria Rusticana, "I Love Thee" by Grieg, and for the wedding march Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus," by Wagner. During the ceremony they played Tannhauser's "To the Evening Star," and the recessional was Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." After the ceremony, as the reception got underway, they played "Serenade" from Student Prince.

The bride's wedding dress was of ecru imported Venice lace over creamy colored bridal satin, a Dior adaptation, featuring the uneven hemline in its bouffant, ballerina skirt. The fitted waist length lace jacket had long tapering sleeves and a standing lace band framed the tulle yoke of the off-shoulder neckline. A head-hugging cap of the Venice lace over satin and edged with pearls held the short silk illusion which fell from the back of the cap. Her slippers of satin matched the cream color of the bridal gown. The bride's bouquet was of stephanotis tied with a bow of ivory colored satin.

Miss Chipman wore a ballerina length satin dress in antique gold. It's short fitted jacket had a round collar and turn back cuffs edged with satin loops. Mrs. Shoemaker wore the same style dress in Beau green. The attendants wore caps fashioned like that of the bride with a side trim of ostrich tips. They both carried red roses in great bows of gold and green satin.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of steel blue crepe. Dyed to match Chantilly lace framed the V-neck and formed the yoke of the bodice. Panels of lace were set into each side of the semi-full skirt.

Mrs. Scott, the bridegroom's mother, wore a softly tailored amethyst satin dress with wide cuffs on the bracelet-length sleeves. Inverted pleats at the center back were a smart contradiction to the pencil slim skirt. Her hat was of peach beige felt and slippers and bag of black suede.

Their flowers were orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held. Red roses were used in bouquets throughout the home in the living room, music room and reception hall. The dining room had bouquets of white roses. The cake, in the center of the dining table was surrounded by smilax and stephanotis. Mrs. J. F. Downs presided at the punch bowl, Mrs. Hugh Courtney served coffee, Mrs. R. W. Latham of Kansas City, and Mrs. Keith Jones of Warrensburg, served the cake after the bride and bridegroom had cut the first piece. Mrs. A. K. Downs assisted in serving and Mrs. John Pelham was in charge of the bride's book.

The bridal couple left late in the evening for a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Colo., and upon their return will be at home at 1023 Lynwood Drive, Rolla, Mo.

The bride's going-away costume was a suit by Adele Simpson in morocco and black check wool, it's narrow skirt topped by a dressmaker blouse of black crepe and velvet. The jacket of the suit featured Miss Simpson's new padded hip line and was edged and belted in velvet. With this costume she wore a large black velvet hat, black suede shoes and handbag.

The bride was born in Ironton, Ohio, attended grade school in Edenburg and San Antonio, Texas, and was graduated from high school in San Antonio. She then attended Stephens College, Columbia. She has made her home in Sedalia since the family moved here nine years ago.

The bridegroom was born in Clinton, came to Sedalia when a young boy, attended grade school, and was graduated from Smith-Cotton high school here. He attended the University of Missouri and was graduated from Central College, Fayette. He served in the Pacific during World War II, leaving the service as a Lieutenant, (jg), in the Navy, and is now a retail salesman for Standard Oil in Rolla.

If you have a ceiling light fixture in your dining room that has lost its "eye appeal," how about painting it with white flat paint (it may require several coats); then entwine some sprigs of artificial ivy around the top of the fixture or in the hanging chain. Use some more ivy for tie-backs for white ruffled curtains.

Style Guide for today's woman

By Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

GOOD-GROOMING is not inherited, but achieved by rigid rules. You may inherit some of the rules, but as in anything else unless they are followed your results won't be gratifying. First of all you must have a well-scrubbed look, your hair shining with cleanliness, your nails clean, your shoes well polished and hose seams straight. If all these things aren't done regularly your most expensive wardrobe will be a total loss. Girls, you are never too young to acquire these habits, and the younger you learn the easier it will be for you to do them. You will keep your youth and find you'll always be known as that well-dressed woman. You will have charm and poise in a natural sort of way that so many women later in life try to achieve but just can't. Learn early in life to spend a little extra time on yourself—it will pay great dividends.

Marshall Owls Bow To S-C Tigers 22-7 In Season Opener

All 31 Smith-Cotton Tigers Saw Action In The First Game Filled With Thrills

The ground attack of the 1950 Smith-Cotton Tigers came through with flying colors Friday night as they mauled the Marshall Owls at Marshall 22 to 7. The Bengals went to the air lanes only six times, but connected five with Warren Keerers and Bill Arnold doing the tossing.

A large crowd attended the game, many were from Sedalia.

All-conference guard "Whitey" Bryant spent most of his time in the opposition's backfield to lead the Tigers to victory. For his evening's toil Bryan blocked three Owl punts to pace a Tiger line that granted the Marshall crew little rest. Other outstanding Tiger linemen were Bob Shawver, Bill Wheeler and Floyd Burton.

Pummil Scores Early

Smith-Cotton left the field at the half with a slim 9 to 0 lead. Pmumill drew first blood for the Tigers in the opening period as he plunged off tackle after the backfield had rolled up three straight first downs. Floyd Burton added the extra point with a conversion. That was all the scoring the locals did in the opening quarter. In the second quarter Bryan took charge with repeated blasts through the Owl line. The first punt he blocked went out of the end-zone for a two point safety.

Shawver opened the second half with a deep kick into Owl territory. After three running attempts failed, the Owls were forced to kick but again Bryant broke through before the punter could get his kick away. Bob Shawver fell on the ball in the end-zone for another touchdown. A bad pass from center caused Burton to pick up the ball and attempt to run the extra point. He was stopped inches from the goal.

Reserves Finish Up

Coach Dow then sent in his reserves to play the remainder of the game and put Burton in the backfield and he slipped through the Marshall secondary and romped 15 yards to pay dirt for the final Tiger T.D.. He also kicked the extra point.

With four minutes gone in the final quarter the Marshall boys finally hit pay dirt as fullback C. Martin plunged through guard. Martin also added the extra poin.t

Penalties Cost Tigers

The Bengals had two of their scores called back on penalties. In the second quarter Bill McCrary plunged over and later Burton caught a long pass that would have gone for 35 yards, but for a holding penalty.

The Tigers had 12 first downs as compared with only three for the Owls. Even the reserves held their opposition even. The Tigers ran off of a straight T formation and bit off consistent gains through the Owls line. Arnold and Keens did the quarterbacking for the S-C griders. All 31 Tiger players saw action in the contest.

Upsets Favorites To Win WNAC

ATLANTA, Sept., 16—(AP)—The brilliant, fast shooting of Beverly Hanson carried the tall Californian to an easy 6-4 upset victory over Mae Murray today in the finals of the women's National Amateur Championship.

Miss Hanson, a 23-year old former newspaper woman in Fargo, N. D., who now plays out of Pasadena, Calif., astounded the gallery with the victory over her little opponent. Mae, the daughter of a Scottish golf professional living in Rutland, Vt. was the pick to win by a fairly large score.

The National Amateur championship gives Beverly seven titles for the year out of nine tries and markes her a major star.

She was a winner in two Curtis Cup matches at Buffalo, N. Y., in addition to the tournament victories.

She has won the mid-winter meet at Los Angeles, the California state, Southern California and Invitational tournaments at Pasadena, Palm Springs and Indo, all in California. Her only defeats were in the Western and the Trans Mississippi.

C. C. Hubbard Tigers Play K. C. Thursday

Coach Broadus Has Given The Boys A Thorough Workout

The 1950 Hubbard High School Tigers will attempt to defeat another "Giant" at Blues Stadium Thursday night at 8:00 o'clock when they meet the Lincoln high school Yellow Jackets at Kansas City. They are really pointing for this game as if it was their own homecoming.

Breather Game

During the past three weeks, Coach Broadus has been working the boys every day, in preparation for the season's opener. It is one of the old breather games for Lincoln high school supposedly on their schedule as they are rated one of the best in Missouri, this season. But the Tigers, bigger and more experienced than last year will be out to pull a surprise Thursday.

Friday, The Reds, the tentative varsity, walked over the Whites 38 to 0 in a full length game at Hubbard park. They executed all plays to perfection and working hard the entire sixty minutes of scrimmage.

Whitney Sparks Team

Whitney, converted tackle to Fullback, sparked the Reds scoring three touchdowns and scoring two extra points, shows promise to be on the way to make the Tiger fans forget Mason Tiger star of last season. Quarter Backing the Red's was handled by Johnson. Three year veteran. A unoque situation in the backfield with three men doing the passing Payne, Everage, and Johnson, kept the White team off balance nearly all the game, due to the fact that they had no idea whether or not the Red's were going to run or pass.

This year's starting lineup, will include:

L. E. Fritzpatrick,L. T. Taylor, L. G. Hogan, C. Irving, R. G. Shobe, R. T. Thomas, R. E. Fields, Q. B. Johnson, L. H. Payne, R. H. Everage and F. B. Whitney.

From all evidence of the past three weeks practice, the boys have shown that they are still determined to not let the big school run over them. They don't know what defeat means. A favorite saying of the coach and team, is, "They will know that Hubbard has been here."

The football schedule for this season is as follows:

Sept. 21, Lincoln—Away.
Sept. 29, R. T. Coles—Here
Oct. 6, Western Baptist—Away
Oct. 13, Open (Tenative Lexington)
Oct. 20, Western Baptist—Here
Oct. 28, Summer, Kansas—Away
Nov. 4, Open (Tentaive Lexington
Nov. 10, Homecoming-Columbia —Day.

Probable Pitchers

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP)—Probable pitchers for tomorrow's major league games. (Won-lost records in parentheses):

Philadelphia at Cleveland — Brissie (7-19) vs. Rozek (0-0).

Oliver Leads St. Louis Open

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 16—(AP)—Ed (Porky) Oliver of Seattle jumped into the lead in the $15,000 St. Louis Open Golf tournament today with a third round 62, eight under par, for a 54-hole total of 200.

The 62 represents a new competitive record for Algonquin course and ties the P. G. A. record for 18 holes.

Porky's achievement set him four strokes ahead of his nearest competitors for the final round tomorrow.

At 204 were Jim Ferrier of San Francisco and Orville White of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., and Gary Middlecoff, Ormond Beach, Fla., last year's National Open champ, were tied with 205.

In the next bracket was Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N. Y., with a 207. Joe Kirkwood, Jr., of Hollywood and Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., the pre-tournament favorite, were grouped at 208.

Yanks Whirl Back Into The League Lead

American League Develops Into A Wire Finish Race

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP)—The New York Yankees whirled back into first place in the Dizzy American League race today by battering the Detroit Tigers, 8-1, with a seven-run explosion in the ninth inning.

The last-minute blast, against veterans Dizzy Trout and Hal Newhouser, gave Lefty Ed Ford, the 21-year-old wonder of the Yanks, a well-deserved victory. The New York rookie set the Tigers down with six hits in chalking up his seventh wi nagainst no losses.

Thus, the Yanks made it two out of three with Detroit and moved in front of the Tigers by a half game. Boston's Red Sox blew a chance to close in when they were trimmed, 5-2, by the pepped up St. Louis Browns, and instead fell two lengths behind the Yanks.

Two Weeks Remain

With two weeks to go in this turbulent race, here's the way the leaders stand:

	W.	L.	G.B.	Play
New York	89	51		14
Detroit	88	51	½	15
Boston	87	53	2	14
Cleveland	83	60	7½	11

Tomorrow the Red Sox collide with the Tigers in Detroit while the Yanks take on the Browns in a doubleheader at St. Louis.

Cleveland, still nursing long shot hopes, walloped Washington, 5-1, on Bobby Feller's five hit pitching, and homers by Al Rosen (No. 35) and rookie Jim Lemon, (No. 1).

In the other American League game, the Chicago White Sox downed Philadelphia, 10-3.

Blackwell Stops Phils

In the overshadowed National League, the Philadelphia Phillies headed closer to the pennant even though they were stopped, 2-0 by the three hit hurling of Cincinnati's Ewell Blackwell.

Brooklyn lost, 4-3, to St. Louis on Del Rice's ninth inning homer, and thus the Phils were able to maintain their huge 7½-game lead. The third place Boston Braves, eight games behind Philadelphia, also blew a chance when they were nipped, 4-0, by Pittsburgh.

The Pirates broke a scoreless tie in the 12th with four runs to win for Lefty Chambers over Vern Bickford, who was seeking his 20th victory.

Chicago made it a full sweep for the second division clubs by conquering the New York Giants, 6-4.

Phillies Lose Miller

The Phils' optimism was dampened by an injury to pitcher Bob Miller. He was forced to retire at the start of the seventh with a sore shoulder. How long he will be out was not determined.

Philadelphia lost pitcher Bubba Church for ten days last night. He was hit by a batted ball. Eddie Sawyer's pitching plight is getting serious since Curt Simmons now is a soldier.

Sport Scraps

By D. Kelly Scruton

PRESIDENT Tom Jenkins of the Sedalia Quarterback Club is getting all pepped up over the football season which got got underway in most sections of the country the past week. But President Tom has his worries—memberships. He has some extraordinary plans for the Quarterback Club in this city for the season, in fact he has made a deep study of it the past season and is anxious to see his plans carried out.

The plans are to try and have at least two motion pictures of games the University of Missouri Tigers have played in at each meeting. He wants at least a meeting a week and he especially wants more interest shown by local sports fans. It's good and should be given some support.

Well known speakers such as Coach Don Faurot, Chauncey Simpson, Harry Ice and any number of Missouri U., coaches and former football players as well as a player or two, will appear before the organization from time-to-time.

Ice who is Executive Secretary of the Quarterback Clubs of the University is coming to Sedalia to visit with local members and in hopes of increasing the local membership. President Jenkins is most anxious to get the members whose dues are delinquent to "pay-up" now.

To become a member of the Club it isn't necessary to be an alumni of the University. It isn't necessary to be a College man, all that is necessary is to be a lover of sports and the desire of enjoying companionship of others interested in sports.

The past three years the Club has been operating, has been an enjoyable one and should provide some interesting information on "inside football" at the University this season.

THE Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion, Saturday, completed plans to resume wrestling in Sedalia for this fall, winter, and the next spring. In a meeting Saturday with Pearl Christy, promoter of the wrestling sport, arrangements were made to hold a match each week.

Last season the serious injury to Champion Orville Brown and Bobby Bruns, created confusion in the Kansas City wrestling booking office which resulted in many shows being cancelled out in Sedalia. But this summer contracts were signed with some of the best known mat talent in the country and the match makers have assured Promoter Christy there will not be any cancellations as far as they can determine at this time.

In the opening show Orville Brown, former champion, will make his second appearance in the ring since his injury more than a year ago. His first match is this Friday at St. Joseph.

This season should bring to Sedalia some of the best wrestlers in the game according to Christy.

Way last spring I stuck my neck out—as usual—and predicted the St. Louis Cardinals would win the pennant. Even give the Browns and outside chance. I beg your everyone is entitled to make a mistake "once in awhile" and I certainly missed the boat—as usual—this year. But I do remember picking the Browns and Cards to both win way back in the War days, and they did. Incidentally I was the only one in the country to be a success—just that one time.

THE following are some shorts furnished me by Bill Callahan of the University of Missouri Sports News Service which might be of interest to followers of the M. U. Tigers. They are as follows:—

Going into the 1950 season, Missouri's football teams have scored at least one touchdown in their last 36 games. The Tigers were last shut out by Southern Methodist, 17-0, on Oct. 26, 1946.

—O—

Four of five football aides to Coach Don Faurot once played under Missouri's head football mentor. Chauncey Simpson and John "Hi" Simmons performed for Faurot at Kirksville, (Mo) Teachers in 1926 and 1927, Huston Betty was Faurot's center at Missouri from 1935 through 1937, and Clay Cooper lettered as a Tiger halfback from 1937 through 1939. Bob Maddock, fifth assistant, played his college football at Notre Dame, under Elmer Layden in 1940, and Frank Leahy in 1941.

—O—

All-American Paul Christman passed for a total of 3,056 yards during his three-year career at Missouri.

—O—

Bill Burkhart, Mizzou's sophomore fullback, is the handy-andy type of ball-player. He was a guard and tackle in high school, won his freshman numeral as a Tiger halfback, and has been shifted to the fullback post this season.

—O—

Don Keller, veteran Tiger tackle, won the service heavyweight wrestling championship of the European Theater while serving in the Army during World War II.

Wilbur Volz, Tiger halfback in 1946, '47 and '48, has been recalled to active duty with the U. S. Army Air Forces. After graduation Volz played one year with the Buffalo Bills professional team, and was under contract to coach football at Caruthersville (Mo.) high this year.

Easter Knight Sold To Mrs. Wm. Ilgenfritz

Snappy 6-Year-Old Stallion Won Honors At Mo. State Fair

The snappy, prize winning Easter Knight, six-year old stallion who won the stud class of the five gaited Saddle class at the horse show at the Missouri State Fair in August, beating out four other outstanding stallions, has been sold by the Scott Higgins Stables in La Monte for an undisclosed amount, to Mrs. Wm. Ilgenfritz of 615 West Broadway.

Plans Own Stable

Mrs. Ilgenfritz says she has plans which will include a stable of her own and several more horses. At the present time she is planning on purchasing a fine harness mare.

Mrs. Ilgenfritz said she drove Easter Knight at Sweet Springs Horse Show Thursday night for the first time and added, "it was a thrill of a lifetime." Mrs. Ilgenfritz paid high respect to trainer Scott Higgins and considered him one of the finest horsemen, trainers and rider in this part of the country.

Shown by Scott Higgins

"If the horse has any good qualities and good blood in him Scott will get the best out of him," she said.

Easter Knight will go to the American Royal again this year and Scott Higgins is scheduled to ride. Tentative plans include other entries from the Higgins stables, according to Mrs. Ilgenfritz.

States To Share Tax On Hunting Equipment

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(AP)—The states will share in $8,673,517 from the federal excise tax on Sporting arms and ammunition this year.

This is $1,239,880 less than last year. The money must be used for the restoration and development of wildlife resources.

States must contribute 25 percent of the cost of their projects. On the basis of $1 from the state for every $3 of federal funds, $11,564,689 will be available to the states for the wildlife restoration program.

Sterling College Grid Team Loses

ATCHISON, Kas., Sept. 16—(AP)—Shouts of "Cheaper by the Dozen" from the crowd didn't mean a thing to officials in the St. Benedict's-Sterling College football game.

The fans noticed that Sterling had 12 men on the field with two men playing fullback in a 6-3-2-1 defense. The crowd began yelling "Cheapeer by the Dozen."

After six plays the situation corrected itself. The Sterling coach sent in five substitutes, and six men came off the field.

St. Benedict's won the game 32 to 7.

Phil Klein Stands Out In Missouri Scrimmage

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 16—(AP)—Coach Don Faurot matched two of his strongest lineups in a University of Missouri grid scrimmage today, and the difference was the forward passing of Phil Klein who led his side to a 7-0 decision.

Klein provided the edge in the 40-minute intra-squad scrap with his passes to Gene Ackermann and Dale Portmann that rolled up yardage. Ed Stephens scored the lone touchdown, and Ackermann kicked the extra point.

Both lineups later practiced defense against the reserves.

Untreated Lime Burns High School Gridsters

CUSHING, Okla., Sept. 16—(AP)—Five Cushing high school football players were hospitalized today with second degree burns received from their contact with untreated lime used to mark the field in a game with Sand Springs.

About 17 others—from both teams—were burned, but none seriously enough to require hospitalization.

Lime's burning qualities are negative after it is treated with water.

Officials did not know how the untreated lime—called unslacked lime—came to be used to mark the playing field.

Cushing coach Melvin Skelton said doctors told him the five may be hospitalized two weeks.

Cushing won the game, played last night, 21-6.

Virgil Trucks Leaves Tigers to Take Rest

DETROIT, Sept. 16—(AP)—Right-hander Virgil Trucks, last year the ace of the Detroit Tiger pitching staff but a sore-shoulder casualty this year, today was sent to his Birmingham, Ala., home for the rest of the season.

Trucks won 19 games last year. This year he had a 3-1 record before the injury May 13.

Husker Coach Has Faith In His Grid Team

However Glassford Isn't Expecting To Win Championship

By Randall W. Blake

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 16—(AP)—Look for Nebraska to be a "harder team to beat" in this fall's Big Seven Conference football games.

That's the tag placed on the Cronhuskers by Coach Bill Glassford who is neither an unduly optimist or pessimistic fellow.

"We were in the game most all the time last fall," Glassford opines. "We took only one bad beating (48-0 by Oklahoma). If we show a good spirit and we get some real help from some of our sophomores, we should be a harder team to beat this fall."

However, Glassford is by no means talking championship for his Nebraskans.

Wouldn't Be Surprised

In fact, he frankly says he wouldn't be surprised if the team ended with no more victories than last year. In 1949, the Cornhuskers won four and lost five. Having a 3-3 record in the Big Seven.

Glassford won't have to wait long to find out where he stands. Nebaska opens with Indiana here Sept. 30 and follows with Minnesota at Minneapolis.

Nebraska will field a big line anchored around all-conference tackle Charles Toogood. Toogood, by the way, says this is the most spirited team in his four seasons at Nebraska.

But, Glassford points to a backfield that still lacks height for the best pass defenses, and adds that his backfield corps is not overloaded with experienced players.

One thing Nebraska does expect to do this fall is more running from the quarterback post of Glassford's T.

Major Load on Nagle

Veteran Fran Nagle, 175 probably will still have to carry the major load of quarterbacking. Good help is expected from Bobby Reynolds, 175, who at Grand Island was rated one of the best Nebraska high school players in history. Reynolds will also operate at a half back position.

At the center post where the rugged Tom Novak held forth for four seasons, Nebraska appears to have a capable replacement in Joe McGill, 205, senior from Omaha.

Things don't look too bright at the ends and Glassford is still toying with the idea of a few switches to strengthen that corps.

Nebraska's first conference game is with Colorado at Boulder, on Oct. 14.

"Shiela" Not To Be Discouraged By CC Agents

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 16—(Special)—If there were some way to pin a medal on a duck, a somewhat mournful-looking shovler hen might sport a bronze disc for reliability and faithful service to science, according to a report received this week by the Conservation Commission from the Wildlife Management Institute.

Every year since 1947, just after the break-up of the ice on the vast Delta Marshes of Manitoba, this duck, long dubbed "Sheila" by personnel of the Delta Waterfowl Research Station, has returned to the same little patch of grass to nest. During this time, she has produced some 60 known eggs and has returned to a spot within two hundred yards of previous nesting sites each season despie the fact that research workers at the Station have taken her eggs, have trapped her repeatedly, and have daubed her wings with red paint for ease in dientification. Ignoring these invasions of her privacy, she has turned up regularly each year ready to go to work as soon as spring has pushed the snows and ice north of her favorite meadow.

Shiela's activities, carefully recorded by Lyle Sowls, biologist on the Delta staff have contributed valuable data on the renesting and homing habits of waterfowl that may be applied to future management programs. In the event that fate and a charge of chilled sixes should interfere with her plans for the coming year, the hunter who brings her to bag still can help her make one last contribution to human knowledge of her kind by returning her band, No. 47-604004, to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Accident Victims Get First Aid Treatment

LEBANON, Mo., Sept. 16 — (Special)—Conservation Agent Art Pugh of Laclede county and John Reed of Pulaski county gave emergency first aid to victims of an accident near Hartville recently, according to an article in the Lebanon Daily Record.

The Record states that the two agents came along the secene of a mishap between two cars shortly after it occured and gave first aid to the injured, using two boat paddles for a temporary splint. The agents then traveled ahead of the car taking injured to a Lebanon hospital, sounding siren en route.

Agents of the Conservation Commission receive an intensive course in first aid as a part of their preliminary training.

Jr. Blues To Play Blackwater Today

The Teen-Age Blues will meet the Blackwater Merchants this afternoon at Housel Park at 2:30 o'clock. All fans are urged to come out and see the future semi-pro team of Northeast Sedalia in action.

The Blues after losing four of their first five games have come back strong, winning 11 out of their last 14 games. The game this afternoon should be a close one and should provide an afternoon of good baseball.

Blues manager Melton Thomas said he will use the following starting line-up against the Merchants: Bob Lane ss, Bill Watson 2b, Bill Morgan 3b, Wiley Walter lf, Chas. Vaught cf, Joe Fisher 1b, Eldon Lees c, Joe Walter rf, and C. A. Smith on the mound. Reserves will be Bruce Wall, Donnie Higgins and Johnny Higgins.

Game Of The Coming Week LSU-Kentucky

Could Be Deciding Game Of Southeast Conference For '50

By Harold Claassen

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP)—You'd expect that college football would wait until late October or mid-November before it placed a crucial game on its playing schedule but the title in the Southeastern Conference may be decided this coming weekend.

Louisiana State, the Sugar Bowl representative last January, and Kentucky, named by the conference coaches as the probably 1950 champion, tangle Saturday night under the lights at Lexington, Ky.

There are at least a dozen other bruising games on the program but none carries the title implications of the LSU-Kentucky affair. In fact, the program looks as if the coaches guessed they might not be able to keep their athletes because of the Korean situation and were getting their tough gams out of the way early.

Georgia Tech vs. SMU

For instance, the always magic-minded Georgia Tech eleven invades Texas to see if all the pre-season raves about Kyle Rote and his Southern Methodist mates are true. And then there is North Carolina entering North Carolina State. The machine which Red Enright has quietly put together at South Carolina gets a very severe test in its opener against Duke.

The idea of opening with a tough one also has spread to the west coast where UCLA and Oregon opens their respective seasons by playing each other in Los Angeles. Santa Clara, the Orange Bowl winner, is the guest of California, Coast Conference champion the past two seasons.

Wyoming Meets Baylor

And you can rest assured that Wyoming will be ready for Baylor. The Texas Bears ruined an otherwise perfect season for Wyoming last year by taking a 32 to 7 contest. It will be George Sauer's debut as Baylor coach, after leaving Navy.

If it's intersectional football you are wanting, just help yourself. There's plenty of it.

Marylahd, reported at least three deep in everything, is at Georgia; Oregon State comes east to test Michigan State's revamped and remodeled eleven; Texas Christian forsakes the Lone Star State long enough to try Kansas; Tulsa treks to San Francisco for a look at the Dons in general and Ollie Matson in particular.

Kansas State, rebuilding for the past years, gets an early answer to all its questions by visiting Seattle for a date with Howie Odell's Washington machine and the Citadel opens the George Woodruff regime at Florida in a night contest Saturday.

Two new coaches will be getting the first look at their charges under game conditions in Little Rock where Oklahoma A & M, now tutored by J. B. (Ears) Whitworth, and Arkansas mix. The Arkansas outfit now is bossed by Otis Douglas, formerly an assistant to Greasy Neale of the Philadelphia Eagles.

But before you even get to Saturday there's the Friday night program that includes Wake Forest at Boston College, College of Pacific, without the famed Eddie LeBaron, at St. Mary's and Mississippi tackling Memphis State.

Sights Should Be Set Before Season Opens

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. Sept. 16—(Special)—With fall hunting seasons swiftly approaching, now is the time for hunters to check the sight adjustments of their firearms, the Conservation Commission reminded this week.

Before going into the game fields, rifles should be carefully sighted in with hunting loads on safely protected ranges. Half a dozen test shots fired now may mean the difference between a clean humane kill and a crippled animal, and the difference between success and failure for a long-awaited hunting trip. By all means don't wait until a hunting trip to check your firearms for many trips to the deer woods have been made unsuccessful by firing and frightening the animals the day before the season opens.

Hunting with inaccurate sights is not only dangerous but poor sportsmanship and poor conservation.

Wrestling Will Resume Here On The 27th

American Legion To Sponsor Weekly Mat Events At Armory

Wrestling season will open in Sedalia on Wednesday night Sept-27, according to Elmer Winfrey, chairman of the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion wrestling committee. Plans were completed for the opening late Saturday afternoon with Pearl Christy chosen to promote the shows here.

In a meeting with the committee and the Missouri Athletic Commission representative, Promoter Christy stated arrangements had been made this summer to keep Kansas City on the route of traveling wrestlers and enough contracts had been signed to furnish talent throughout the winter. The matches will be held, as usual, at the Missouri National Guard Armory, Ninth street and Ohio avenue, every Wednesday night.

Brown in Main Event

Christy also announced Orville Brown, for many years the Mid-Western heavyweight champion injured more than a year ago is re-entering the ring. His first match since his accident will be in St. Joseph next Friday night, and he will enter the Sedalia ring for the second match of his season schedule in Sedalia the opening night.

Brown who hails from Wallace, Kansas, is to meet "Killer" Jerry Meeker of Missoula, Montana, in the main event for the best two falls out of three with a 90-minute time limit. Meeker hasn't been in the mid-west area for several months and his return will be welcomed as he is one of the best entertainers in the sport.

Champion Brown has been working out for the past four months preparing his return to the mat entertainment. He suffered injuries in a car wreck near St. Joseph, Mo., and for several months his condition was critical. He feels he has overcome the injuries and desires to resume his activity as a wrestler.

Get Best Talent

The Legion and Promoter Christy agreed the matches would be held every week throughout the season with the exception of the last two weeks in December, resuming action on January 3. Some of the best talent in the country is being scheduled through Missouri and "top-names" are to appear in the local ring.

Ray Eckert, well known champion from California, Mo., who has been visiting in the mid-west this summer will remain over in this area for a time and is expected to be signed for several matches in the Sedalia ring. Eckert has indicated his desire to wrestle before the Sedalia crowd again. He has been main event talent throughout Canada, the East and West coasts of the United States the past two years.

Giant is Coming

"The Great" Talum, a six-foot eight inches tall, 300 pound wrestler from Warsaw Poland is coming for the opening match. His opponent is to be signed the first of the week. Walter Sirois of Montreal, Canada, is expected to be matched against Talum if the arrangements can be made.

Joe Pazandak, Minneapolis, Minn., and Carlos Rodriquez, St. Louis, have been contacted to appear in the opening event on the card.

Something new and something better is the plan of the Legion and promoter this year according to their Saturday talks.

Tickets for the first matches will be handled at the Beverly's Snack Shop, 520 South Ohio avenue, starting this Wednesday.

Midget Racers Will Burn Up Track Tonight

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 16 — (Special)—Cecil Green, Kansas City's most popular midget auto racer, will return to Olympic Stadium Sunday night to compete in the opening 50-lap Mid-Western championship. The Mid-Western classic, postponed last weekend because of rain, will continue with a 75-lap classic on September 24th and the 100-lapper on Oct. 1st.

Bob Barker, flery Burbank, Calif., midget racer, booster his odds for winning some of the major shares of the Mid-Western crowns at Olympic Stadium when he won his second big feature event of the season last Monday night.

Green placed third in the 100-mile big car races at Detroit last weekend and will pilot the Champbell No. 5 Offenhauser here Sunday night. Time trials start at six p.m. and races about seven o'clock.

Other outstanding contenders for the crown are Buzz Barton, of Chickasha, Okla., Vito Calia, of Kansas City, Wayne Selser, from Omaha, and the 1950 point standing champion, Guy McHenry, of Wichita.

Paid Wolf Bounties

Oscar Kindle was paid a bounty of $30 in county court for three wolf scalps. Ten dollars was paid to J. D. McFarland for a wolf scalp.

Fred Schell To The State Fair Horse Division

Noted Breeder of Clay County To Be Superintendent

Fred P. Schell, well-known Clay county horse and purebred stock breeder, has been appointed superintendent of the Horse Department of the Missouri State Fair, according to W. E. Preston, secretary of the Sedalia event. The appointment was effective September 1.

This was Preston's first major appointment since he assumed his duties as secretary. "Fred P. Schell," said the secretary, "is one of the most experienced horse breeders in the state. He knows both draft and light horses, with which he will be dealing, through many years of handling, showing and breeding, and he is acquainted with all the major owners in Missouri. We expect great things of this, the most important single division of the fair, since Mr. Schell has taken over," he continued, "and I am happy to find one of my friends and neighbors qualified to take over this high position." The department includes all types of draft and pleasure horses.

The Liberty Advance says of the new superintendent:

"Schell, who attended four days of the 1950 fair in order to more fully orient himself with his new duties, was for 9 years president of the Missouri Horse and Mule Association, is a member of the board of directors of the Missouri Association of Fairs, and prominent members of the board of the Clay County Night Horse Show, among many other responsible positions.

"I am honored," said Schell in an interview, "to try to fill the capable shoes of Dean Ed Trowbridge, my good friend, who for many long years ruled the division which I am about to take over, with a firm hand. I hope to measure up to his work."

Be Some Changes

"Concerning the 1951 fair, Schell said, "There are going to be some changes. We will have more Missouri classes, and lots more amateur and juvenile classes during the first few days of the fair. Also, we will limit the futurity stakes for colts to Missouri alone. In past years this class has been open to breeders from all over the United States, but next year's competition will be different." His program, as tentatively outlined, will be heavily expanded from even this season's large showing.

"Schell's qualifications for his new job are more than adequate. Born and reared in Kansas City, he was in Clay county off and on during summers as far back as 1910, raising cattle and carrying on other projects when still a youngster. He and his wife, who is also a capable showman and breeder, established Schellcrest farm in this county in March, 1921. Since that time Schellcrest has become one of the famous show places of the area.

"The farm has grown with its owners, and now covers a section of land on Liberty R. 2, southwest of town. Activities carried on at the big place are many and varied, and Schell employs a large force of helpers. In general, however, the new horse show superintendent can be described as a professional breeder of pure bred animals, all kinds.

"Percheron draft horses have been bred and raised on Schellcrest for many years. In 1941, Clara, one of Schell's mares, was crowned "Miss Percheron," the highest honor a mare of this type can win, at the National Percheron Show. Clara, over 20 years old, is still living on the Schellcrest acres. Another prize Percheron was Porter, who was second highest champion, in 1939. Obusier, a producing stallion, father of France, won his class as a 2-year fine imported stallion brought from old, and was junior champion, with reserve grand champion, and awarded the prize as the best imported Percheron at the International Livestock Show in Chicago, 1939.

Breeder of Saddlers

"In the light horse department, Schell has for a good many years bred American saddlers, both three and five gaited. His Astral Bell McDonald won most of the junior stakes in this district as a 3-year-old. Schell sold this fine mare to the well-known breeder, Bill Shropshire, of Tennessee, and she was shipped East, where in all her long career as a show horse, she never lost a three-gaited stake. In 1937 Dare Schellcrest was champion yearling at the American Royal, in one of the largest yearling classes ever shown. The colt beat four other highly touted youngsters, from the four corners of the nation, none of which had ever lost a competition.

"Holstein dairy cattle are another forte of Schellcrest. He has exported several herds to experiment stations in China and South America, and has furnished stock for breeders and 4-H raisers for over 25 years. In the swine department, he breeds Duroc hogs, and has developed a "mail order" business and a long waiting list for his prize-winning piglets.

"On the section of land which comprises Schellcrest, Schell raises all the hay that his stock requires, and has never yet come close to running out. He is an advocate of all the finer conservation practices, and has improved every acre of the 640 with the latest means available.

"One more of the myriad activities carried on by Fred and Elizabeth Schell is their program in relation to underprivileged children and youngsters whose city breeding gives them little chance to get out "on pasture." He has two good-sized lakes, well stocked with bass, crappie and Bluegills, and fishing privileges are restricted solely to these youngsters."

Glaviano Scores On Disputed Play

Tommy Glaviano, Cards' third baseman, flies across home to score as Dodger catcher Bruce Edwards spins to take the tag in the first inning of the Brooklyn-St. Louis game, played at New York. Umpire Dusty Boggess calls the play. The Dodgers argued Glaviano failed to touch the plate. During the argument Glaviano again touched home and again Boggess called him safe. Then Boggess conferred with umpire Babe Pinelli and reversed the decision. When the Cards protested, all three umpires got into the discussion and decided Glaviano was safe. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Candidates For Activity Queens

Elections for candidates for the Activity Queen honor were held Thursday at Smith-Cotton high school. There were several close contests in the class election with the following girls winning out: Eighth grade, Clo Greer; Freshman, Mary Peters; Sophomore, Barbara French; Junior, Bonnie Haggard; and Senior, Kathryn Summers.

The activity drive itself started at 9:00 o'clock Friday morning with the students checking tickets out from their respective class sponsors and "home room" teachers.

For every ten tickets a student sells he gets one free ticket and a double count for his class on that free ticket. The classes will be judged on a percentage basis and the class with the largest figure will have it's queen candidate crowned at the football game at Liberty Park, Friday night September 22.

Vets Administration Explains Insurance

National Service Life Insurance is not issued to veterans automatically when they return to active duty, W. F. Fidler, Jr., of the Veterans Administration said.

Because of misunderstanding on the part of some veterans, the VA has received several premium payments from persons who have no policy. Veterans who dropped their insurance while civilians must reapply and reinstate their GI insurance, he emphasized.

One of two steps must be taken by veterans who have discontinued their GI insurance and want it back on their return to active duty. They must either apply for reinstatement of the old policy (if the term period has not run out) or they must apply for new insurance.

Fidler stressed the fact that the application must be completely filled out and signed for acceptance.

125 Attend Teen Town Opening

Teen Town officially opened Friday night with about 125 high school students turning out. This was very good attendance considering the many students went to the Smith-Cotton football game at Marshall. Teen Town will be open every Friday and Saturday night.

Improvements on the interior of the building are, a new snack bar made of glass blocks and a florscent lighting system.

Teen Town offers many recreational opportunities, among them are ping pong, pool, shuffel board, pin ball machines, checkers, cards, dancing, a record player, reading material, radio and other table games.

Seasons tickets are on sale and the price is $1.00 for junior high students and 75c for senior high students.

Smith-Cotton Students Held First Pep Rally

Smith-Cotton high school had its first pep assembly of the year Friday morning at 11:30 o'clock. The students showed a lot of spirit for the Tiger football team which plays Marshall Friday night.

Coach Ralph "Stub" Dow gave a short pep talk and encouraged the students to make the trip to the game at Marshall and to push the activity drive. He said every student should sell at least one activity ticket and buy one, if possible. His assistants, Coaches Norman James and Howard Glavin were introduced to the student body as well as the members of the football team who made the trip to the game at Marshall.

Tornado Wrecks Sasakwa, Okla., Five Injured

SASSAKWA, Okla., Sept. 16—(AP)—An unseasonal tornado struck in and near Sasakwa just before dusk last night, injuring at least five persons.

There had been no reports of deaths.

Three hours later (9 p. m. Central Standard Time) no telephone communication was possible with the town of about 1,000 persons, 75 airline miles southeast of Oklahoma City.

Three of the injured are in the same family.

Ambulances and rescue workers rushed to the town from Wekoka, 15 miles north.

The highway patrol headquarters at Oklahoma City received a radio report from a unit which reached the town that 12 to 15 homes were damaged, two were destroyed, the Frisco depot was damaged and a garage housing school buses was damaged. Some of the buses were overturned.

Officials of the town said they did not need outside aid.

A schol bus load of Boy Scouts—which reportedly left the town just before the twister struck—had not been accounted for, the patrol said.

A 12-year old boy, last name Epperly, also was reported missing.

After the tornado struck, hail fell and strong winds blew, along with heavy rain.

The town has no power and a portable generator was being brought in.

Heart Attack Fatal To Politician Elected

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 16—(AP)—Circuit Clerk Heinie Berger, who rode into office by his willingness to do favors for voters, died Friday of heart disease. He was 56.

A Republican, Berger controlled a lot of patronage. When he was elected four years ago he said:

"Since 1930 I have done favors for about 25,000 persons. . and I've kept a record of each one. When I got into this race, I sent out letters to each of them, reminding them of the favors and enclosing five postcards for them to send on to their friends in behalf of my candidacy."

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Slight Damage Results In Two-Car Collision

A 1935 Ford coach driven by Maude Dyer, 1213 North Pacific avenue collided with a 1949 Yellow Cab Ford sedan which was driven by Jessee N. Pummill, 414 North Hurley Friday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock at the corner of Ohio avenue and Jefferson street. Slight damage resulted to both cars. Settlement was made at the scene of the accident.

It takes a lot of people to make the wheels turn to start the fall activities of the Scout program in Sedalia. A year-round program must be planned and made available to over 650 Girl Scouts. This big task is done through the medium of over 100 volunteer leaders, co-leaders, troop committee members, and program consultants. Each school has been assigned an organization chairman whose job is to secure leaders for the troops in her respective school. Organization chairmen who have been busy during the past month are: Mrs. R. Overfelt, Smith-Cotton; Mrs. Cline Cain, Broadway; Mrs. Freta Napier, Jefferson; Mrs. John Bowman, Whittier; Mrs. E. F. Paxton, Sacred Heart; Mrs. O. Black, Hubbard; Mrs. G. Ragland, Mark Twain; Mrs. Al Miles, St. Patrick; Mrs. Obrey Cramer, Washington; and Mrs. Abe Silverman, Horace Mann.

An extensive training program has been planned for the fall season to introduce Scouting to all new leaders and to assist both old and new leaders in planning their troop activities. The first of these sessions will be held as follows: senior leaders, Wednesday at 1:30 at the Scout office, intermediate leaders on Thursday at 1:30 at the Scout office, and the Brownie leaders on Friday at 1:30. Mrs. Lora Helman will preside over all of these meetings and lead discussions on troop management and activities.

The regular council meeting was held in the Scout office on Thursday morning at 9:30 with ten members present. Plans were made for Mrs. Lora Helman and Mrs. Arthur Freeberg to attend the Staff and Office Institute in Kansas City on October 2 and 3.

Marine Sergeant to Be At Sedalia

Staff Sergeant William Radwick of the Marine Corps recruiting office of Jefferson City, will be in Sedalia Thursday, September 21 and every Thursday thereafter until further notice to interview, process and accept for enlistment young men from Sedalia and vicinity who are interested in enlistment in the Marine Corps.

Sergeant Radwick further stated that now the Marine Corps can accept married men with dependents for enlistment in the Marine Corps for the duration. For further information contact Sergeant Radwick who will be located in the post office at Sedalia, (all day).

Miss Joyce Kell To Nursing School

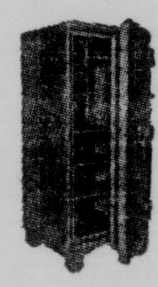

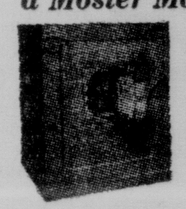

Miss Joyce Kell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Kell, 307 East Jackson street, has enrolled at the St. Mary's School of Nursing, 2840 Baltimore, of Kansas City, and was accompanied to Kansas City last Sunday by her parents and her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Kell, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Kell returned to Kansas City today where they will attend the open house being held at the new addition of the hospital.

65 POLAND CHINA HOGS
WIL SELL AT AUCTION AT
The Patrick Sale Barn, on Highway 40, 3 mi. west of Boonville, Missouri, Monday, September 25th

The offering consists of bred and open gilts; Spring boars, ready for service and sows with litters at side.

All are closely related to the Grand Champion Pen of Barrows, Over all breeds at the 1949 Mo. State Fair and the Grand Champion Barrow, Over All Breeds, in the Junior Show at the 1950 Mo. State Fair.

These hogs have been selected from large litters and have been bred for generations to make economical gains. Pigs from one of these litters officially weighed 250 lbs. at 6 months and 4 days of age.

We are selling a number of large, rugged, heavy-boned, deepsided boars especially suited for crossbreeding on commerical sows. If you want your next crop of pigs to grow faster, use one of these good Poland China boars. They are weighing between 200 and 300 lbs. and can be used on both spring gilts and old sows.

NOTE: Any hogs selling in this sale will be delivered without charge to anyone living in Pettis county.

Vatican Plans New Radio

VATICAN CITY — (AP) — The shiny steel towers of one of the world's most powerful radio stations will be a tangible and lasting mark of the 1950 Holy Year. Dedicated to Pope Pius XII upon the occasion of his priestly golden jubilee — April 2, 1949 — vatican officials say it will be completed by 1952.

It will have a series of powerful transmitters and 29 antennas, 19 of them directional for intercontinental transmissions and ten for the European service. One of the big station's major tasks will be to share in the Catholic church fight against Communism and to give moral support to the 500,000 Catholics behind the Iron Curtain.

U. S. Air Display In Mediterranean

BEIRUT, Lebanon—(AP) — Seventy U. S. Navy aircraft, including jets, recently staged the biggest peace-time display of American air power seen in the eastern Mediterranean.

The planes flew off the carriers Midway and Leyte, part of the U. S. Sixth (Mediterranean) fleet which visited this Levantine port.

The display was staged after a request from the Lebanese government.

Commercial Lines Pitch in For a New Airlift Role

AIRBORNE REPLACEMENTS: Reserve forces for the First Division, U. S. Marines, now in the battle lines of Korea, arrive at Tokyo in a commercial airliner flying the Korean airlift route.

By NEA Foreign Service

TOKYO —(AP)— Two days after U. S. troops were ordered to move into Korea, a DC-4 transport named "Singapore Trader" waddled into the air at the Air Force's Fairfield-Suisun field in California.

Via Alaska and the Aleutians, the Seaboard & Western nonscheduled cargo plane, which once before had helped support the Berlin airlift, swung out over the great circle route to Tokyo for the first official flight in the Korean airlift.

There were only 60 four-engine transports bearing the government's Military Air Transport Service insignia in service in the Pacific then. In the whole month of May, they had flown only 70 tons of men and materiel to the Far East.

Today there are more than 175 MATS planes on the run—plus 66 planes operated by 17 commercial airlines in their vital role of "second line of national defense" under the Civil Aeronautics Act.

Close on the tail of the "Singapore Trader" came Clippers of Pan American World Airways, flying via Hawaii; Capital, Braniff, United, American, Eastern, National, Northwest, Alaska, plus some other non-scheduled carriers, quickly joined the lift.

The role the U. S. airlines are playing in America's Korean battle shows in the tonnage carried since that first take-off. The airlift to the Far East now hauls 100 tons of men and equipment each day.

The 66 planes being flown by the commercial lines, MATS officials point out, are hauling as much tonnage as the 175 or more planes actually operated by MATS. Lack of Air Force crews to fly the big ships, and a shortage of ground crews, MATS says, are the reasons for the big differential.

To do the job, the airlines are using some of their best pilots and crewmen. Hundreds of the service and maintenance men have worked to install extra tanks for increased range, extra radio and navigation equipment, and to modify the planes for a workhorse, rather than a civilian, role.

Orient-bound, the planes haul key personnel, weapons, new fighter-plane engines, blood, and most recently, replacement troops. On the State-side flights, they carry evacuees, wounded men, even engines for overhaul.

Thus far, domestic service by the airlines has been untouched by their airlift role. Some cargo service has been dropped. Newer and faster equipment is doing most of the passenger hauling once done by the DC-4. More MATS planes are coming out of mothballs to take on the Far East job.

If the airlift were suddenly called on for a bigger job, it could be expanded faster at first by commercial lines than by the military. Then the priorities that made airline seats one of World War II's scarcities would probably be put into effect again, and domestic air travelers would feel the pinch.

Club Votes on Its Activities

On September 5 the Longwood Homemakers club met at the home of Mrs. John Greer, with 18 members and two visitors present. The meeting opened with the song "School Days." Roll call was answered by giving a quotation of Washington or Lincoln. Mrs. Cloyd Leftwich led the devotional. Mrs. Carl Schroeder read a letter from Miss Zimmerman and the president, Mrs. Carl Raines, read one from Miss Watkins. The members voted on their choice of activities for the next year. Meetings were set for etching and painting Friday with Mrs. Clay Leftwich. Mrs. Joe Jenkins told about the loan library and the club decided to try it. Poems were read by Mrs. Junior Hammond and Mrs. Clay Schroeder. The meeting closed with the song "Happy Birthday" for those having birthdays recently.

Refreshments of punch, cookies and fruit jello were served. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Joe Jenkins.

• The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Decided to Fire Johnson Four Weeks Ago;

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON.—There were a good many reasons why Louey Johnson was fired as secretary of national defense. He was, of course, the victim of fate in the Korean war, and the President needed a political scapegoat.

But the most important reason, in the end, for Johnson's exit was that he never made a friend of his chief in the White House. Had he won Truman as a real friend, the President would have stuck by him through hell and high water—regardless of Korea, regardless of military blunders, and regardless of economy at the wrong time.

Truman has stuck by his friend Mon Wallgren, by his friend Dean Acheson, and by his late friend Tom Pendergast, despite all sorts of criticism. But Johnson was never a friend.

In fact, Truman never even trusted his secretary of defense. He knew that Johnson was playing ball with the Republicans, with his old enemy Bernard Baruch, and with others who played on the opposite political ball team. At one time the President complained to Senator Kilgore, who comes from Johnson's home state, West Virginia:

"In order to find out what Louey is up to, I have to read the Republican Press and the Chicago Tribune."

Actually, the President's decision to fire Johnson was made four or five weeks ago. After making the decision, Truman told very few people, one of them being General Marshall. Incidentally, it was not until the past week that Marshall finally gave his assent.

Secretary Johnson didn't know he was on the skids till the White House called in Steve Early, the undersecretary of defense, to tell him they wanted his resignation a week earlier than Johnson's, so that Early would not be mixed up in Johnson's exit. But Johnson heard about it through Early's office, went down to the White House and handed in his resignation, thus beating the President to the gun.

Strengthening Acheson

Mr. Truman had planned to force the resignation at approximately this time, however, in order to have it coincide with the meeting of the Big Three foreign ministers in New York. This was deliberate strategy planned to strengthen Dean Acheson's hand.

Johnson's eyes were on the Pacific and the Far East, while Acheson considered Europe more important. And the Johnson resignation was a deliberate move planned to strengthen our European front.

In fact, at least two members of the North Atlantic pact—Great Britain and France—had been unhappy over Johnson's leadership of European preparedness, and the British had made no bones about indicating their restlessness under the ebullient and brawny Louey.

British resentment against Johnson undoubtedly dates back to the Hague meeting of national defense ministers, where Johnson deliberately planted a story aimed against British War Secretary John Strachey. Newspaper accounts from the Hague carried the story that British and American defense ministers had arranged to have confidential reports sent direct to British Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell, thereby circumventing War Secretary Strachey because of his former left-wing connection.

The story was later denied. But it developed that the original story had been planted by Johnson personally with the Associated Press. In fact, the AP man sent a confidential memo to his office telling how Johnson personally had given him the story slapping down the British war secretary.

Naturally, this got back to the British war secretary, and the British have dropped hints from time to time since then that they could work more efficiently with someone other than Louey in our national defense post.

Other reasons why the President decided to fire his bouncing secretary of defense were:

1. JOHNSON'S KNIFE-IN-THE-BACK POLICY TOWARD ACHESON—At official conferences, Johnson pretended to be a great pal of Secretary Acheson. But the White House knew that he had been passing ammunition to GOP Senators Brewster and Wherry to aid their attacks. At conferences in the Pentagon, Johnson and his aides could not talk for ten minutes without dropping wisecracks against the State department. It became an open scandal.

2. PROCRASTINATION IN THE PENTAGON—Ever since the Korean outbreak, President Truman has been begging Johnson for a strategic long-range defense plan. But the truth is, Johnson hasn't been able to get the joint chiefs of staff to agree on even the requirements for the Korean war. They are still bickering over our defense planning, and the few points they agree on are usually rejected and sent back for revision by Johnson. Yet Johnson has concealed this confusion in the Pentagon with optimistic, misleading reports to the public.

General Bradley has been so fed up that he has been ready to resign, though as a good soldier he has tried hardest to follow Johnson's leadership.

3. JOHNSON'S TRUTHFULNESS? — Inside the cabinet, Johnson had the reputation of being an incurable liar. Ex-Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall used the sharpest language to express the failing of Johnson's. "Johnson," he told friends, "hates the truth."

On one occasion specifically known to this writer, Steve Early lectured his boss like a schoolboy.

"You have got to learn that you can't lie," Early told Johnson. "You simply cannot lie. Especially you can't lie to newspapermen. You get found out."

4. JOHNSON'S GRANDIOSE PROMISES—Johnson guessed wrong at practically every turn. He saw silver linings where there were none. He told the public what he thought they wanted to hear. He preached economy before the Korean war when he thought the public wanted economy. His statement that the United States would be ready at 5 a.m. if Russia attacked at 4 a.m. was one he can never live down.

5. JOHNSON AND MacARTHUR—The White House became convinced that Johnson had something to do with General MacArthur's statement on Formosa. In the first place, Johnson was close to Gen. Julius Klein, a Chicago newspaperman who now heads Pan American Airways' public relations lobby and who has also been active in the "get Acheson" drive. Klein has been working with Senators Brewster, Wherry and Taft in the drive to boost MacArthur and fire Acheson. The White House received information that Johnson had been playing hand-in-glove with Brewster and Klein in regard to Formosa and other matters.

6. JOHNSON'S LEGAL COMMITMENTS—Before he entered the cabinet, Johnson was personal attorney to H. H. Kung, brother-in-law of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. The Kung family has heavy investments in the Philippines and Formosa, and Johnson was continually poking his finger in the State department's pie in regard to these matters. He obtained the appointment of his old friend, Myron Cowan, to be ambassador to the Philippines, and never relented in his drive to have the U.S. intervene in Formosa—where the Kung-Soong families are now in exile.

7. BERNARD BARUCH—Believe it or not, it was Bernard Baruch who helped to tip the scales against Johnson, though inadvertently. The President, who has developed a bitter hatred for Baruch, learned that Johnson had been conferring with him. This was the last straw. The President's mind was made up after that.

Marshall, in Defense Post, May Become Target of GOP

By Bruce Biossat

General George C. Marshall will bring to his new job as Secretary of Defense a high integrity, a fierce devotion to duty, and a fine talent for military organization.

As our supreme commander in World War II, he was more than any single man, the architect of victory. He was the man who saw the whole shape of the war and gave it direction and drive.

For these reasons he is, in the military field, virtually above reproach. Congress, through the war and after, always held him in highest esteem. No man who could qualify for the Defense post is less likely than Marshall to engender heavy criticism.

Marshall's tenure as Secretary of State was of a different order. He brought to that job the same high purpose and energy he had always shown as a soldier. Yet some of the qualities which stood him in good stead as a military man were not assets in a diplomatic role.

The general displayed a certain inflexibility and aloofness which handicapped him in dealing both with other diplomats and with the public.

Yet, despite these handicaps, he recorded such notable achievements as the European Recovery Plan which bears his name, and the basic spadework on the vital North Atlantic Pact.

On the other hand, he made the decision to abandon Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government in China a virtual U. S. protectorate to save it for Chiang.

Nevertheless, neither this move nor any weaknesses Marshall may have shown as a diplomat has led anti-administration forces to censure him severely. Out of respect for his military stature, Republicans and others have spared him. They have criticized others for the vital China decision he made.

It remains to be seen whether Marshall will continue to bear a charmed life now that he's back in the Truman fold. Republicans have regularly demanded the scalp of Secretary of State Acheson, who is following a line set by Marshall in China. It's hard to see how the general read into his appointment as Defense secretary the taking of a new and firmer U. S. stand in the Far East.

But aside from this aspect, the general unquestionably will be welcomed. His predecessor, Louis Johnson, had been marked for scuttling from the moment the Korean war began.

That war revealed how poorly the United States was prepared to defend itself and its friends around the world. Johnson for months had been soothingly telling the nation it was reasonably secure and ready. The cruel events in the Far East contradicted him.

Johnson, much more than Acheson, had become a political liability in an election year that would focus on the Korean fighting. The choice of Marshall largely cancels out that liability, at least in so far as strict military affairs are concerned.

• So They Say

It is just as important that we keep our financial house in order as any other line of national defense and unless we do so, we are not going to be able to have any national defense.

—Rep. John Tabor (R.) of New York.

—O—

What we need, what the world needs, is a 20-year program to win peace through the United Nations.

—United Nations Secretary General Trygvie Lie.

—O—

It was bad enough that the decisions first to build and then use the original A-bomb had been made by a few persons in high positions and shrouded in secrecy. The nation as a whole is carrying the burden of responsibility for these steps.

—Dr. Eugene Rabinowitch, University of Illinois physical chemist.

Ps. 25:9; 32:8; 73:24; Isa. 58:11

THE SEVEN WAYS OF GOD'S GUIDANCE

If guidance gives to life a sense of mission and the sense of accountability every moment, then how does God guide us?

I suppose the great problem to God is how to guide us and not override us. He must guide us and develop us as persons at the same time. To lead us and at the same time produce initiative in us is a task worthy of divine wisdom. That task is the problem of every thinking parent. Many parents are benevolent tyrants, snuffing out initiative and personality. Guidance must be such that each person is guided into a free, self-choosing, creative personality.

To do this God will guide in many ways, awakening the personality to aliveness and alertness of mind and spirit to His hidden leadings. God's leadings should be sufficiently obvious to be found, but not so obvious as to do away with the necessity of thought and discriminating insight. They must be "an open secret"—open, yet sufficiently secret to make us dig.

God will guide us in one or more of all these ways: (1) He gives general guidance through the character and person of Christ. Christ lets us know what God is like, and, therefore, what we must be like. (2) He guides us through the collective experience of the Church—the corporate wisdom gathered through the ages. (3) He guides us through the counsel of good people. (4) He guides through opening providences—matching us against some opening opportunity or need. (5) He guides through natural law and its discoveries through science. (6) He guides through a heightened moral intelligence and insight—we become personalities who are capable of exercising sound moral judgments. (7) He guides us through the direct voice of the Spirit within us—He speaks to us in unmistakable terms in the depths of our being.

The probabilities are that God will guide us in more than one of these ways, lest one method narrow us.

Gracious Father, my being within me is atingle to find out Thy way and be led into it. For I know that Thy way is really my way—the way I am made in my inner structure to obey. So help me to seek Thy way with my whole being and without reservations. For I know that Thy hand is my health. In Jesus' name. Amen.

NEA Staff Correspondent

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Here's another of a question-and-answer series that tells how the Korean war affects reservists, veterans, draft-age men, and anyone likely to be called to service. The author, a member of the Washington staff of NEA Service, conducted a widely-read column on "Your GI Rights" in the months following World War II. He will answer questions only in this space, not by mail.)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

Q. I will be 21 soon and am starting my junior year of college. Will I be deferred for the full year or just the semester?

A. You'll be deferred for the full year.

Q. Are sole survivors from the last war being deferred?

A. If you are the sole surviving son of a family that has had other sons killed in action you can be deferred.

Q. Do enlistments in the Air Force reserve expire or are they frozen?

A. They are frozen.

Q. I served in World War II as a fighter pilot with the rank of flight officer. What is my standing today? Is there any way I can get a reserve commission as a 2nd lieutenant?

A. If you were offered a reserve status as an enlisted man and accepted you are eligible for recall as an enlisted man. If you did not accept that kind of status you won't be called because you aren't in the reserves. You can apply for a commission on the basis of your record as a flight officer.

Q. Suppose a man in the Air Force gets a call to active duty but his orders got lost being forwarded to him while he is on vacation. What can they do to him if he fails to show up because of this?

A. You'll have to think up a better one than this. Orders are sent registered mail. And the individual to whom they are sent has to sign a card for them. So the Air Force knows whether or not you have actually received your orders.

Q. My son is about to start college. What is the maximum deferment he can get?

A. If he takes R.O.T.C. and and agrees to serve on active duty for two years after graduation he can get a four-year deferment.

The Doctor Says—

Artificial Aids for Disabled Are Being Improved Daily

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

About 18,000 American servicemen lost ot least one arm or leg as a result of wounds or accidents during World War II. During the same four years, about 120,000 American civilians also lost one or more of their limbs.

All these people and the others who had similar difficulties earlier, or will join them later, need help. They need help not only in getting adjusted to their physical difficulties but also to a certain amount of mental discouragement. Fortunately much can be done and the picture is constantly improving.

Naturally, it gives a person a lift to find that an artificial arm or leg can be fitted comfortably and used with great skill. The fact that there has been such great progress in developing artificial limbs is thus a matter of great assistance in rehabilitating people who have lost an arm or a leg. As soon as a suitably fitted artificial limb can be attached and adjusted, people usually find that they can do a great deal more than they thought they could.

The fitting of mechanical aids does not come at once. Perhaps the most discouraging time is that which comes before this can be done. But even when the right time has arrived there are difficulties in getting used to the artificial limb and learning to use it skillfully. At this stage patience and the encouragement of those who have been through the experience are of the greatest help. The results are astonishingly good; many of those who have lost one or more limbs have succeeded in holding down good jobs and even taking part in most forms of sports.

Perhaps it helps also for the amputee to realize that everyone is somewhat handicapped in one way or another. This is a world of frustrations and even those who appear entirely well are not able to do everything they want. They, too, must make adjustments for age, sex, education, training, climate and a host of other obstacles to complete freedom of action.

Other Handicaps

And, it is not only those who have lost a limb who have to learn to live with some physical handicap. Heart disease frequently requires a new adjustment to occupation and recreation. The person who develops diabetes often has a difficult time in curbing the appetite to fit into the needs of the proper care of that disease.

The youngster who has had polio with some lasting effects should be an example to all of us. Practically without exception these youngsters meet their problems cheerfully, take advice well, and overcome their handicaps to a remarkable degree.

The ability of human beings to conquer deformities or other handicaps caused either by disease or injury is amazing.

What's RIGHT?

You want to compliment a woman on what she is wearing.

WRONG: Say: "You certainly are dressed up tonight."

RIGHT: Tell her how becoming her dress is. The comment about how dressed up she is will only make her feel self-conscious.

The Old Soldier Again Answers the Call

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Rutt

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: The former Ede Frey, whose marriage to Peter Flood has not been happy, was placed by her father's will in charge of Frey & Company, a successful advertising agency which her father wishes to remain in the family. But the firm is having troubles and loss of the Morn-Glo soap account would be ruinous, according to Dan Reagan, her late father's right-hand man. Then Ede is summoned by Lewis Northcott, advertising manager of Morn-Glo, who confesses that Ede is "rather a surprise to me."

* * *

NORTHCOTT pursed his thin lips. "You're not like your brother Jeff, are you?"

"Why do you say that?" Ede asked.

Northcott looked directly at her. "Jeff is afraid of me. You're not."

"No," said Ede calmly. "I'm not."

"You were perfectly right in thinking that I could have invited you here for one of two reasons," Northcott said. "But you'll be glad that it isn't bad news. I did, however, want to find out what you were like."

"And now that you know, Mr. Northcott?"

He gestured, with a slim long-fingered hand. "What makes you think I know? You haven't been here three minutes."

"I don't underestimate your intelligence," Ede said. "You've formed an opinion."

A kind of gray smile flickered across Northcott's face. "Right again. And I don't mind telling you that it's a good one. You're something like your father, Miss Frey. But not altogether like him."

"Not yet, anyway," Ede said. "My profanity's nowhere near as picturesque."

"Not even," he said, the gray smile lingering, "when the Morn-Glo account gets obstreperous?"

"Not even then." Ede waited a second. "Mr. Northcott, does your calling me over here give me the right to ask you a question?"

He nodded. "Certainly."

"In that case," said Ede, "I'd like to know if you're perfectly satisfied with the service you get from Frey & Company?"

It was then that she saw, through the thin veiling of politeness, the supreme egotist in Northcott.

"I don't wonder," he said. "You know, of course, that I could take the account away at any time."

"Yes." She nodded. "I know that."

"Suppose I were to?"

* * *

A SADIST into the bargain, thought Ede. He likes the cat-and-mouse game. She shrugged. "We'd be sorry. But if you do, we'll just tighten our belts. And presently we'll get another soap account."

"Oh, you will?" Northcott's eyes were not smiling now. They glittered from behind the gold-rimmed spectacles. "You think that would be easy?"

"Not easy. But possible."

"You hold our business relatively lightly, then, Miss Frey?"

He's putting me on the spot, Ede said to herself. If I don't lick him now, he'll lick me for evermore. She compelled herself to meet Northcott's colorless eyes.

"You're quite wrong, Mr. Northcott," she said. "I don't hold your business lightly. On the contrary, it's the most valuable account in our agency. But I don't think you're going to take it away."

"Why not?" The power of his gaze easily equaled hers.

"Because," she said, as matter-of-factly as she could, "it wouldn't gain you a thing. You know perfectly well, Mr. Northcott, that you couldn't get better work from any other agency in the country."

A queer expression came over Northcott's face. It made her think of a gray wolf, grinning. "You're very confident, Miss Frey."

Ede shrugged. "I'll back my team," she said. "If we lose, that's just hard luck. But, of course, you're not playing fair with me."

There was a wary look in Northcott's opaque eyes. "Just what do you mean by that?"

"Only that there's something in back of all this. Something you haven't told me."

He put his hands on the desk, folded them and leaned forward. "You're very shrewd, Miss Frey. And you're a better contact man than your brother. I like people who aren't afraid of me."

* * *

THEN Edith Frey said an outrageous thing. It was the sort of thing that might easily have jeopardized the relationship between Lewis Northcott and Frey & Company. But the words seemed to slip out involuntarily, as if in protest against this palpable lie.

"That isn't so at all, Mr. Northcott," she said. "You don't actually like people who aren't afraid of you. You simply fear them. Because they're likely to—to—well, to upset your calculations."

Northcott's grin broadened. "Are you psycho-analyzing me, Miss Frey?"

"Hardly," Ede laughed. "I guess I'm just being rather presumptious. And, of course, we're getting away from the point. Which is, your real motive in sending for me."

Northcott sat forward in his chair. The conversational tone dropped out of his voice and he got down to business.

"I admitted a moment ago, Miss Frey," he said, looking at her intently, "that I asked you over here to find out your strength. A better way to put it would be that I want to find out the strength of Frey & Company now that you're practically in charge of it."

"Yes?" Ede said, and waited.

"I won't beat about the bush," Northcott continued. "Frankly, Miss Frey, a couple of other agencies have been soliciting the Morn-Glo account."

• Q's and A's

Q—Why were altar rails installed in churches?

A—One day in 1636 the English Bishop of Norwich was conducting services when three dogs wandered into the cathedral and romped up to the altar. Afterwards the bishop ordered that a rail be built "one yard in height and so thick with pillars that dogs might not get in."

* * *

Q—What do spiders feed on during winter when there are no flies around?

A—Spiders eat other insects, besides flies. Under winter conditions, they can go without food for as long as several months.

* * *

Q—Which sea contains the least amount of salt?

A—The Baltic. Its salt content is as low as seven parts in a thousand.

* * *

Q—What percentage of homes are now equipped with television sets?

A—Nearly one-fifth of the nation's urban homes—or 18.4 per cent—now have television sets.

* * *

Q—Has Belgium an official language?

A—Belgium is bilingual; both Flemish and French are spoken.

* * *

Q—What woman broke Gertrude Ederle's English Channel swim record of 14 hours 31 minutes?

A—Florence Chadwick, whose time was 13 hours and 20 minutes.

Better Revise Social Schedule When Hubby Gripes at Parties

So your husband starts to grumble every time you tell him that you've accepted another invitation to a back yard barbecue or another evening of bridge with the Joneses, or that you're having the "usual" crowd over for the evening.

Before you chalk his grumbling up to pure male cussedness, stop and think a minute.

Maybe you have been shoving your husband into a lot of dull evenings. Maybe he has a right to grumble at the prospect of another dull evening, just like dozens of others he's spent during the past few months.

Maybe your social life follows the same old pattern, month in and year out.

Not Too Good a Job

Wives—who usually are the social dictators in the family—often don't do too good a job of keeping the family's social life interesting.

Mrs. B. gradually narrows down the couples she and her husband see until they become one couple in a small crowd and who see each other over and over.

That's her first mistake. Her second is to let her entertaining follow a set pattern. Last week the Smiths had a crowd over for a back-yard supper, so this week she has the same crowd over for a back-yard supper. There's nothing to make this week's party different from last week's but the menu.

The next mistake she makes is in feeling that she has to accept invitations that she knows will lead to a dull evening. She just doesn't seem capable of saying "No" to any invitation.

Any wife who has made those three mistakes in managing her family's social life can expect her husband to grumble every time he faces another one of "those evenings." And she ought to take his grumpiness as a warning that she needs to liven up their social life."

King Cotton Eyes Girls Again; Looks for South's 1951 'Maid'

By MARY ALLIE TAYLOR
NEA Special Correspondent

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (NEA) — King Cotton has begun his search through the Southland for the loveliest lady to serve as his good will and fashion ambassador.

The contest in which the 1951 emissary—the Maid of Cotton—will be named will run until Dec. 1, with final judging late in December to choose the 13th girl to wear the mantle.

Back in 1939, the Maid of Cotton Enterprise was originated by The Memphis Press-Scimitar and Memphis Cotton Carnival Association. From that season's crop of cottonland pulchritude, tall, blonde Alice Hall was sent out through the mid-South on a mission of goodwill for Memphis and Carnival.

That same year the National Cotton Council was formed to represent 15,000,000 members of the American cotton industry, and since then has sponsored the idea.

Memphis claimed the first four Maids, with Mary Nell Porter, now Mrs. Ulisse Nolan of New Orleans, having the title in 1940; Alice Beasley of Memphis and LaGrange in 1941, and Camille Anderson, now Mrs. Frode Jensen of Denver, in 1942.

In those early years the tour was expanded gradually to cover the entire United States.

Then came World War II. Along with their travels on behalf of the American cotton industry, Bonnie Beth Byler of 1943, now Mrs. Charles Burke of Helena; Linwood Lelane Gisclard of 1944, now Mrs. Harry Wilson Findley of Belmont, Mass., and Jennie Earle Cox of 1945, now Mrs. Charles Jace, wife of an Army officer, sold war bonds and stamps.

In 1946 Gwin Barnwell of Gastonia, N. C., now Mrs. Robert I. Dalton, Jr., of Charlotte, was honored at a Congressional Cotton Ball in Washington, with the nation's leaders attending.

* * *

The first trans-Atlantic flight to Paris was made by Hilma Seay, the 1947 Maid, now Mrs. Billy Marks Hightower.

England took its place on the tour itinerary in 1948 when Matilda Nail of Fort Worth, now Mrs. Tully Petty of New York, was the Maid.

A flight across the Pacific to Hawaii climaxed the 1949 schedule of Sue Howell of Bakersfield, Calif.

Elizabeth McGee of Spartanburg, S. C., completed the long 1950 tour early this summre.

Stops in countries never before visited by a Maid of Cotton are being arranged for 1951.

* * *

To be born in a cotton producing state is one of the entry requirements. Eight of the 19 comprising the cotton kingdom have had Maids—five for Tennessee and one each for Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Texas, California and South Carolina. That leaves Alabama, Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Virginia.

Other qualifications are that an entry be between the ages of 19 and 25, at least five feet nine inches tall and never has been married. The Maid is not chosen on beauty. Personal appearance, of course, enters into the judging, but background, poise, personality and intelligence are given equal emphasis. As soon as she's named, the Maid of 1951 will set out for New York to assemble a wardrobe of smart cottons created by some of the nation's most famous designers and then tour here and abroad to show them off.

MARY NELL PORTER: The first four came from Memphis.

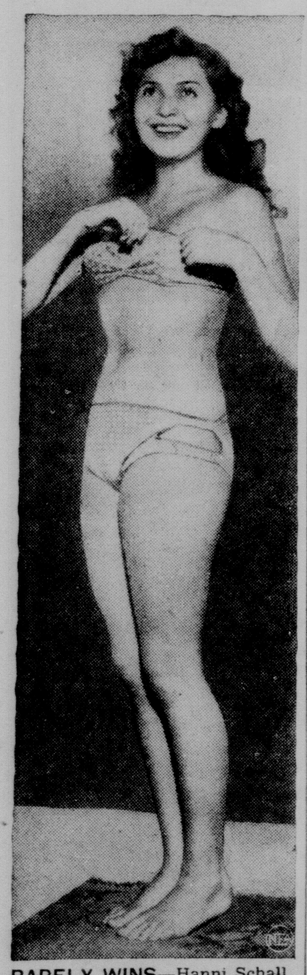

JENNIE EARLE COX: In 1945, the "Maid" sold war bonds.

ELIZABETH McGEE: The 1950 tour lasted until summer.

BERRY NICE — That's a pun, son, but what else can you say when a neat dish like Valerie Wallace is chosen "Miss Blackberry Julep, 1950" by the New York State blackberry growers to reign over their height-of-the-season festival at Ellenville, New York?

Seaweek Industries Planned

EDINBURGH, Scotland —(AP)— New industries are being created from the 10,000,000 tons of seaweed estimated to be growing around the coasts of Scotland. The Scottish Seaweed Research Association has found that the present method of burning the seaweed to produce iodine wastes other important constituents. If the plans of the scientists are successful the seaweed will form the base of several new industries in making building materials, fertilizers and perhaps fine nylon stockings.

Movies Added to Italian 'M's'

ROME—(AP)—To the three famous "M's" of Italy—music, marble and macaroni—a fourth has been added—the movies. That's what the American film critic, John B. Turner, believes after visiting Italian film studios and talking to the man in the street about moving-making.

"The Italians are tremendously interested in the movies," says Turner. They're movie-crazy."

All this week The KMBC-KFRM Team will be at the Kansas State Fair at Hutchinson. Dinnerbell Roundup will be originated from our tent on the Fair grounds each noon, Monday thru Friday. All of you folks who will be in and around Hutchinson are cordially invited to come out and visit the gang. Emcee Jack Dunigan, the Tune Chasers, Millie & Sue, Jed Starkey and Colorado Pete will be on hand all week. Hope you'll drop in and say hello.

For an outstanding evening of radio listening, we'd like to call your attention to the varied KMBC Sunday night lineup. Comedian Jack Benny is back for his 19th year, at 6 p.m., with his regular all-star cast. At 6:30 p. m. you'll hear Hit The Jackpot, with emcee Bill Cullen. The Percy Faith Orchestra, unusual arrangements and a distinguished guest soloist, fills the 7 p.m. spotlight. Dave Rose and his Orchestra are replacing Red Skelton until October at 7:30. Meet Corliss Archer is at 8, and Horace Heidt is heard at 8:30. The Contented Hour is at 9 p.m., followed by John Farmer and the News at 9:30. Jim Burke and Sports news is heard at 9:40 p.m.

Sam Molen

While on the subject of sports, we want to let you know about Sam Molen and his Big 7 Football broadcasts. Sam has selected a top game of the week and will be heard every Saturday afternoon this fall at 1:45 p.m. on KMBC and KFRM. The season opens this Saturday, September 23, with Sam on hand to bring you the season opener between Texas Christian and the Kansas Jayhawks. Jim Burke will work with Molen, and will do the color commentary. Don't forget, broadcast time for football this next Saturday will be 1:45 p.m., with Sam Molen at the play-by-play microphone.

A new and distinctive quiz game is now heard at 4:45 p. m. Monday through Friday over KMBC. It's been a popular program in this past year . . . so popular in fact it is being extended throughout the country. Genial Bill Slater, a veteran performer in various facets of radio, is the emcee of this quarter-hour program. Not everyone knows the answers to all questions, so "Share The Wealth" is more than a title in this game. Contestants pick others to help them answer the questions, and it makes for a highly entertaining program. Hope you'll tune in this new program Monday at 4:45 on KMBC.

Nancy Goode's Happy Kitchen program resumes Fall demonstrations this week. Starting Wednesday at 2 o'clock, Nancy will conduct a demonstration in the Kansas City Power & Light demonstration kitchen, each week. There is no admission charge, and you're cordially invited to attend. Hope you'll drop in Wednesday afternoon, and be sure to listen to Nancy at 8:45 each weekday morning.

Green Ridge

Mrs. Verna Palmer

The 1950-51 term of the schools of Green Ridge district R-8 began on Monday, Sept. 11.

The faculty members and the subjects they will teach are as follows: M. R. Jones, Supt.; H. D. Ashley, Social Studies; Mrs. Emmett Ruffin, Mathematics; William Wyss, Vocational Agriculture Mrs. Nannie Sims, English and Speech; Nelson Stonner, Physical Education and Science; Mrs. Fay Bertheux, Music (high school and grades); Mrs. E. S. Close, Commercial subjects.

Mrs. William Wyss, grades seven and eight; Mrs. Forrest Calvert, grades five and six; Miss Gayle Kendrick, grades three and four; Miss Grace Still, grades one and two.

Teachers in the three rural schools to be operated by district R-8 this year are: Mrs. Carl Ragar, Vanatta; Mrs. Elizabeth Bond Centerview and Miss Lula Parrish, Manila.

The annual reception for the school teachers of Green Ridge district R-8 was held on Sunday evening at Presbyterian church basement dining room. The members of the TNC Sunday school class were hosts.

The president of the class William Heibner was master of ceremonies and he introduced Mrs. Nannie Sims. She presented the following teachers, telling where they were born, where they had received their education and the degrees they hold: Supt. M. R. Jones, William Wyss and Mrs. Wyss, Mrs. Faye Bertheux, Mrs. E. S. Close, Mrs. Forrest Calvert, Miss Gayle Kendrick, Miss Grace Still, Mrs. Carl Ragar and Mrs. Emmett Ruffin.

A contributive supper was served cafeteria style to approximately a hundred people. Following the supper games were played, led by Mrs. Roy Ragar and Mrs. William Heibner.

The Men's Bible class of the Green Ridge Presbyterian church entertained the members of the church and Sunday school with a watermelon supper on Thursday evening, Sept. 7th in the basement dining room of the church. A nice crowd enjoyed the supper.

Otto Veach of the state of California, Mr. and Mrs. Jene Veach and son of Wichita, Kas.; Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Wharton of Kansas City and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Veach of Tipton were called to Green Ridge by the death of their brother-in-law, Ward Lacey, this week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Palmer were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Mary Garoutte at her home in Windsor. Mrs. Raymond Edmundson was an afternoon caller in the home.

Miss Helen Skradski of Kansas City and Louis A. Brownfield of Kansas City, Kas., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Brownfield of Green Ridge, were married on Saturday morning, September 2, at St. John the Baptist catholic church in Kansas City, Kas. Following a honeymoon trip to the state of Colorado Mr. and Mrs. Brownfield will make their home in Kansas City. Mrs. L. E. Arnett and Mrs. Dennis Brownfield, sister and mother of the bridegroom, attended the wedding ceremony.

Week-end guests in the homes of Mrs. Wilma Eckhoff and daughters Drue Linda and Mr. and Mrs. Selsus Iman and children Kim and Joan were: Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Egbert and son Iman, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Warnhoff, Mrs. Agnes Burnett, Francis Gruswitz, Ray Ward, Eugene Wienerke, Eugene Barrnam and Charles Pitts, all of St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Blaylock of Hughesville, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Iman and son, Danny, and daughter, Mary Ann, Cecil Iman and son Wayne of Higginsville; Mrs. Ollie Eckhoff of Kansas City and Mrs. Ervin Eckhoff and daughter Dorris Jean of Sedalia.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Balke and children who have been residing in the T. J. Close building on South Main street, have moved to the William A. Wharton residence, where they will make their home.

F. E. Ream is making his home in Sedalia at the Royal hotel. He plans to spend the winter months in Sedalia.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Ruffin and daughter Linda and Vernon Phillips attended the Walking Horse national celebration at Shelbyville, Tenn., which was held on the first and second of September. On Sunday they visited the Hermitage home of Andrew Jackson at Nashville, Tenn., returning to their home on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Titsworth and sons Stanley and Guy and Allen Titsworth of Windsor left last Sunday for Capitan, N. M., where they will visit at the homes of relatives. Carol and Johnny Long, who have been guests in the Titsworth home for the past few weeks, returned with them to their home at Capitan.

Mrs. Clifford Brownfield of Green Ridge underwent a major operation at the Bothwell hospital in Sedalia last Tuesday morning.

An estimated 400 rural people are killed and 800 to 1,000 injured each year by lightning.

Conscription Asked For Malaya

IPON, Mayala—(AP)—A call for conscription in Malaya to help meet the threat of Communism in Asia was made by members of the Peak Council of State.

Leong Yew Poh warned the Council of the Red menace to Indochina and Thailand which was "staring Malaya in the face," and stressed that Kerak's northern frontier with Thailand was "almost unguarded."

"The Soviet has already blueprinted its conquest of Thailand and the Red menace is fast approaching our land," he declared. "We cannot survive a Communist occupation," he stated.

Maybe He Means Good Lookers

CHICAGO —(AP)— Chicago's alderman Hoellen is looking for a fence viewer. Ruth M. Petersen, a legal secretary, wrote him that she needed two fence viewers to decide who was supposed to keep up the decaying fences on her property, she or her neighbor.

Hoellen finally dug up a state statute of 1874 providing for fence viewers. He called the county board office and asked for a couple.

"Two what?" was the answer.

Hoellen is still hunting.

Clifton City

Mrs. Add Johnson

Mrs. D. W. Long of Clifton City and her brother, Elliott Strine, of Wichita, Kan., who were called to Albuquerque, N. M., by the serious illness of their sister, Mrs. Edgar Bridges, returned home Friday. Mrs. Long and Elliott remained there one month with their sister and her condition was improved enough for her to be moved from the hospital to her home.

Clifton City school with Mrs. George Knox as teacher has 25 pupils enrolled. The seventh and eighth grades go by bus to Otterville this year. The hot lunch program is being carried out this year and Mrs. W. L. Smith is doing the cooking.

Lovelace school west of town taught by Miss Melva May began last week and has 19 pupils enrolled.

Mrs. J. H. Potter and her sister Mrs. F. S. Needy are in Kansas City, guests of Mrs. Potter's daughter, Mrs. Harry Miller, and Mr. Miller. From Kansas City they will go to Topeka, Kan. and visit another daughter of Mrs. Potter's, Mrs. Al Neyhart, Mr. Neyhart and son Wilson.

The Clifton City community meeting which is held once a month met in regular session at the school house Thursday evening. In the absence of the president and vice president, Miss Juanita Aggler presided. The meeting was called to order by all repeating the 4-H pledge, followed by singing "America the Beautiful." Roll call was answered by each telling of some place of interest they would like to visit. One new member Donnie Aggler was added to the roll. As there had been no special program arranged, games were played and refreshments were served by two members of the Homemakers club, Mrs. Paul Young and Mrs. F. S. Needy.

Mr .and Mrs. Oscar Dove entertained at dinner in their home here Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Klein and daughter, Miss Betty Klein of Sedalia, and Misses Virginia Felten and Juanita Felten and Juanita Aggler.

Raye Franken of Tipton spent the week-end here with his sister, Mrs. Olyn Rugen, and Mr. Rugen.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lang and family of Boonville and Norbert and Virgil Schuster of Pilot Grove were guests here Monday of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Aggler and family.

Mrs. J. G. Harlan will be hostess to the Women's Society of Christian Service at her home Thursday afternoon, September 21st. Mrs. J. J. Potter will have charge of the program using as her subject, "I Believe."

Mrs. Anna Bidstrup, who has been a guest of relatives at Clifton City and Smithton the past month left Friday for her home at Thermopolis, Wyo.

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Wells of Kansas City and Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Nichols of Sedalia were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marti here Sunday afternoon of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gramlich and daughters, Miss Louise Stoecklein and Mrs. Glenn Johnson of Sedalia and son Carl returned home Saturday after a trip through the western states. Another daughter, Mrs. Robert Schuster, Mr. Schuster and son Ronald Wayne, who remained at the Gramlich home during the family's absence, have returned to their home in Sedalia.

Mrs. Mary Fairfax entertained the Clifton City Homemakers club at her home in an all day session Wednesday, September 6th, with 12 members and one visitor, Mrs. John Dove of Smithton present. At noon a contributive dinner was served. In the afternoon the president, Mrs. J. J. Potter, called the meeting to order and presided over the regular routine of business. Plans were discussed for Achievement day, which will be held in Boonville in October. All yearly reports were finished and handed in.

The program, which was on Parent Education, was in charge of Mrs. Paul Young, assisted by Mrs. Oscar Dove. Officers were elected for the ensuing year and were as follows: President, Mrs. J. J. Potter; vice president, Mrs. Paul Young; secretary, Mrs. Mary Fairfax. These officers were all re-elected. At the conclusion of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed. The October meeting will be with Mrs. J. G. Harlan.

Israelis Rush to Leave the Country

TEL AVIV, Israel—(AP)—Israelis who want to go abroad are rushing to get out of the country before their exit permits expire—for it's going to be tough to get new ones. The Jewish National airline "El Al" and all the foreign carriers operating from nearby Lydda airport are swamped with bookings. The sudden rush to travel was precipitated by a government order that "only essential travel" will be permitted in the future. Thus, Israelis who already have exit permits must quickly use them.

Thief Invents Lock

HAMBURG — (AP) — The chief of a band of car thieves, now serving his sentence in an Offenburg jail, has invented a "theft propf" lock for cars, the "Hamburg Abendblatt" reported. The reformed car thief wants to patent his invention, the paper said.

It has been estimated that erosion destroys the equivalent of half a million acres of U. S. farm land every year.

Skin Color May Be Protective

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Human skin color may be a protective device to permit man to escape his enemies, says Dr. Raymond B. Cowles of the University of California. He says sunburn is not a good explanation of darkened skins. Thickening of the skin is a much better protection from the sun, he says.

But in the jungle, a black skin makes a man hard to see. That is not true in northern forests, he says.

The "twinkling" of stars is said to be an illusion caused by human eye movements.

West Germans Send Books East

BERLIN—(AP) — West Germans have started a drive to pump good books into Soviet Zone. They think the East German is becoming brain-weary from a diet of books that constantly hammers home the Soviet and Communist political message.

The Westerners have organized a "Bureau for Cultural Help" with the sponsorship of such leaders as Mayor Ernst Reuter of West Berlin, and Eugen Kogon, journalist and author whose Nazi concentration comp experiences are told in the best-selling "The SS State."

The bureau contends that the very existance of the German language east of the Elbe river after five years of Soviet occupation is endangered. The bookshelves, the schools and the univertities are clogged with Russian language textbooks.

Collects Steam Threshers

FRANKLIN, Ill. —(AP)— Milford Rees is a modern farmer who collects old steam threshing machines as a hobby. Once a year he invites the neighbors over and fires up the quaint contraptions His prize showpiece is a wood burning thresher made in 1883.

Whistles Interpreted

JERUSALEM—(AP)—What's in a whistle? - Jan Peerce, the Metropolitan Opera tenor, asked himself when he heard a shrill one at the end of his first concert in Israel.

"Listen, my friends", Peerce addressed the audience - "when that happened to me in Bogota and then in Los Angeles, a few weeks ago, I knew people wanted to express their appreciation. To Europe, I haven't been yet, but I was told it's not so good if people whistle. Now what does it mean in Israel?"

"It means tow meod - mezuyan!',' they shouted back.

He got the Hebrew words translated. Tov meod means "very good". Mezuyan is "excellent".

So he gave another "encore".

San Francisco Vote on Mental Health May Show Way Other Cities Can Follow

Treatment: At a New York state mental hospital, a patient (back to camera) gets help in making something to boost her ego. But most state hospitals don't get patients unless they are formally committed. Experts are watching San Francisco for a possible answer to providing early treatment.

By AL OSTROW
NEA Special Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO—(NEA)—Is the public willing to foot the bill for "doing something" about what the Hoover Commission and the U. S. Public Health Service have dubbed "America's No. 1 public health problem?"

The voters of San Francisco will supply a partial answer next November, when they ballot in a referendum to decide whether or not the city will provide immediate treatment for mild cases of mental illness.

It will be the first local election of its kind in the nation, and such experts as Dr. William C. Menninger, head of the famed Menninger Clinic, and Richard C. Hunter, executive secretary of the National Mental Health Foundation, have served notice that they consider the outcome of major importance.

* * *

The Public Health Service estimates that one person in every 10 faces a serious mental or emotional disturbance some time in their lives. Psyciatrists insist that these cases, if treated promptly, could usually be cured. But facilities for early treatment of mental illness are scarce—almost non-existent in most parts of the country.

As a result, many mild mental disturbances are permitted to develop into major derangements, requiring long periods of hospitalization in locked wards. Nearly 700,000 people in the United States are patients in mental hospitals—about 53 per cent of the nation's hospital patients.

Fourteen years ago, San Francisco dedicated a new Psychiatric Building at its County Hospital. The building included two floors specially designed and equipped for "short term treatment of mild cases of mental illness."

Owing to legal technicalities and reluctance of city officials to appropriate funds for that purpose, the two floors have never been used. As in most major cities, the county hospital is limited to "observation" of mental cases. If a patient requires treatment, he or she must be legally committed to a state hospital.

The psychiatrists in charge of the ward repeatedly asked authority to provide treatment, and funds to activate the two idle floors. "Many patients," they argued, "can be cured in a few days or a few weeks, without the stigma of commitment to a state hospital, where they lose their voting rights and other privileges of citizenship."

The campaign for the mental treatment unit is being conducted chiefly by the Mental Health Society, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the American Legion. Nationally, the American Legion's executive committee has appropriated $25,000 for a coast-to-coast campaign aimed at stimulating similar efforts elsewhere to solve "America's No. 1 public health problem."

High Singapore Venereal Rate Cited

SINGAPORE — (AP) — Singapore's rate of venereal disease is seven times that of England and Wales and the figure for babies under one year 15 times that of the English rate.

This was made public by Dr. L. M. Ram of Singapore in a paper read to the Pan-Malayan meeting of the Alumni Association of the King Edward VII College of Medicine.

Man Retires But Not Truck

ALTON, Ill. —(AP)— George J. Winger's (Model T Ford) truck was a year old when he started in the baggage hauling business 32 years ago.

Now 77 years old, Winger has just retired. But his 33 year old truck, he says, is still running and almost as good as new.

Group to Map Cancer

NEW YORK—(AP)—The American Geographical Society, as a part of its program of studies in medical geography, is planning a large-scale contribution to the geographical study of cancer.

"We don't know who has cancer and where," said Dr. Jacques M. May of the society's staff. "It would seem that this knowledge is essential to an understanding of the problems set by the disease. The distribution of cancer in its various forms throughout the world in human beings, animals and plants cannot fail to provide a useful clue."

An Atlas of Cancer, presenting all the known facts, is planned.

France, With Help of Marshall Plan, Works at Rebuilding Steel Industry

OLD-FASHIONED METHODS in this Lorraine steel mill will give way to the latest techniques when the new SOLLAC mills begin operating in 1952. Marshall Plan funds are helping France rebuild steel industry.

By NEA Foreign Service

PARIS—(NEA)—In two years, roaring blast furnaces and smoky skies in the heart of France's richest iron ore region will signify one of the Marshall Plan's top industrial recovery projects on the European continent.

To France, this project called "SOLLAC" is a trump card in meeting her 1950 steel capacity target of 12.5 million metric tons of crude steel. It also stands for more automobiles, more radios, more refrigerators and, combined with other steel enterprises, an anticipated national income of $23,000,000 annually in foreign exchange.

In 1930 France produced 9,447,000 tons of steel, 10 per cent of world war production. Because of war damage and other disruptions, by 1945 production had dropped to 1,661,000 tons.

Without financial assistance from ECA, the French steel industry has been able to reinstall and reactivate the blast furnaces required to bring French production to 9,124,000 tons, only three per cent less than their 1930 production.

* * *

SOLLAS (Societe Lorraine de Laminage Continu) is an organization of nine leading iron and steel firms which have been given priority to modernize the industry and boost production. The project is located near Hayange, "Pittsburgh of France," close to the Saar.

The Economic Cooperation Administration, throwing its financial backing into the enterprise, has earmarked $49,360,000 for equipment. The balance of the cost is expected to come from the French counterpart fund, the modernization fund and normal financial channels, and will cover labor and materials to be obtained in France.

The SOLLAC project's 80-inch mill frequently is referred to as "the second continuous strip mill." Construction work on a 66-inch mill at Denain, in the northern French coal basin, began in 1947 and is being completed with the help of $12,000,000 in Marshall Plan funds.

France's new steel mills are expected to reduce or even eliminate sheet and tin plate imports. In 1948, France and her overseas territories imported 94,000 tons of sheet and tin plate at a cost of $18,000,000 in foreign exchange.

When both projects are working at capacity, France hopes to be able to export 200,000 tons of thin sheets and 50,000 tons of tin plate, or about 17 per cent of her flat steel annual output. This means about $23,000,000 in foreign exchange—a big help in France's over-all trade picture.

While SOLLAC is being financed by government loan and ECA aid, it is an entirely private enterprise, with no government participation in the company or its administration.

Cheers For the General

SINGAPORE —(AP)— Teachers told their Chinese pupils to cheer whenever Major-General Dunlop, G.O.C. Singapore District, paused in his speech he was to give. Major-General Dunlop became ill and was unable to attend. Brigadier Harry Sparks took his place.

Brigadier Sparks told the children, who did not understand English, "I am very sorry to tell you that the General is sick." He paused.

"Hurray," the children shouted, waving their paper Union Jacks.

The Brigadier continued: "As a matter of fact, General Dunlop is very sick today." Another pause.

"Hurray," the children yelled again.

"A classic example of misunderstanding," said Major-General Dunlop when told about it later.
